Eisenhower's War Front Visit Veiled in Mystery

(Compiled from A.P. Dispatches) Eisenhower's press secretary, last week that he intends to finish his term as governor. He has a Friday meeting with Governor coming at Eisenhowers invitation. Dewey and secrecy shrouding him to discuss the Korea juncture of his forthcoming trip to the Korea and other policy matters. There was no indication that Dewey had been speculating that Dewey's election might be offered a cabinet post following his strenuous efforts in the new Republican administration. However, Dewey said

Legion Asks Allowances Of $60-$120

OTTAWA, Nov. 12 (CP)—In the wake of Remembrance Day mourning for Canada's war dead, the Canadian Legion told the cabinet today that many of the men who fought and lived facing "extreme hardship."

The main fire was concentrated on the state of the roughly 30,000 Canadian overseas veterans and widows of veterans living on war veterans' allowances, awards made to the aged and needy.

The existing maximum monthly rates of $50 for single, $90 for married recipients aren't large enough to allow the recipients to live in decency under existing living costs, the brief said. They should be at least $60 and $120.

The Legion proposed that the allowances be increased and that ceilings on total income be raised sharply—to $1,200 single instead of $720, to $2,000 married instead of $1,200—so those recipients who can work won't be penalized for doing so.

It urged, too, that the postwar program which sent thousands of veterans to college be duplicated for children of deceased veterans.

Duke Makes First Training Flight

WHITE WALTHAM, Eng., Nov. 12 (AP)—The Duke of Edinburgh went up in a light plane today for his first flight as a training pilot.

At the controls was Flt. Lt. Caryl Gordon of the R.A.F., who has been appointed instructor of the Queen's husband.

They made a half-hour hop at 2,000 feet, including a swing around Windsor Castle, country residence of the royal family on the outskirts of London.

CITY TV FANS MAY BENEFIT BY NEW PLANS

$10 Million Scheme Reported in Making

Victoria television fans may benefit by a double-barreled plan to bring television to Vancouver, now under consideration by Famous Players Canadian Corporation Ltd.

It is a multi-million dollar scheme—estimated to cost as high as $10,000,000—to provide a community antenna and coaxial cable system, and also a coin-in-the-slot telemeter service.

The plan includes construction of a 300-foot TV "community antenna" that would pick up broadcasts from Seattle and Bellingham, to be relayed to customers by a land line coaxial cable.

The movie distributing corporation has applied to the Vancouver city hall for a long-term franchise.

Asked today if such a scheme could be adapted for use by Victorians, Frank H. Gow, provincial manager for the company, said "that will come in time."

"I can't give any details, but we will have some information in a few days," he said.

There would be initial installation charge in Vancouver, possibly $100 to each TV set owner, and then a small monthly service charge. Telemeter service charges would vary—probably from 25 cents to $1 a program.

Applications similar to the Vancouver one have been made in Quebec City, Toronto, Hamilton, Kitchener, Kingston, Sherbrooke and Three Rivers, Que.

R. W. Bolstad, vice-president of Famous Players, said here to day the system could provide clear and uniform reception.

Hagerty indicated, however, that arrangements for the trip are being made in Washington.

EXTENSIVE PRECAUTIONS

Meanwhile, it was learned that extensive security precautions are being taken to protect the President-elect against the possibility of an enemy attack during his trip to Korea.

Hagerty himself obviously had such arrangements in mind when he declined to discuss published reports that Eisenhower probably will spend U.S. Thanksgiving Day—Nov. 27—in Korea with front-line troops.

At a press conference Hagerty said he hoped to be able to make public by the end of this week "some information" about the Korean trip. But he made it clear such information would be generalized and have little if anything to do with the timing of the President-elect's visit.

Even the method of travel, Eisenhower is planning is being cloaked in secrecy, despite his own statement a week ago implying that he would fly to Korea.

Hagerty also was asked about reports that Eisenhower may be accompanied to Korea by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

"I am not talking politics," MacArthur replied when a reporter asked him whether he would consider returning to active duty in the Far East if Eisenhower called upon him.

MacArthur is serving as chairman of the board of Remington Rand.

The existing maximum monthly rates of $50 for single, $90 for married recipients aren't large enough to allow the recipients to live in decency under existing living costs, the brief said.

They should be at least $60 and $120.

The Legion proposed that the allowances be increased and that ceilings on total income be raised sharply—to $1,200 single instead of $720, to $2,000 married instead of $1,200—so those recipients who can work won't be penalized for doing so.

Plane Wreck Sighted on Alaska Peak

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Nov. 12 (AP)—An Alaska Air Command officer said Tuesday night that search leaders are convinced the airplane wreckage sighted on Mount Silverthorne is that of a missing C-119 troop carrier from Miami, Fla.

Maj. Joe Jeffers of the command's information section said "there is no doubt in their minds that this is it."

Although no one had yet been able to reach the 12,000-foot high crash scene, Jeffers said "it is their opinion that there are no survivors."

The "flying packet" vanished in flight Friday with 19 men aboard—five crew members and 14 soldiers.

ROCKY DOES NOT FAVOR ALL-OUT DRIVE IN KOREA

MONTREAL, Nov. 12 (CP)—Brig. J. M. Rockingham told the Montreal United Service Institute Tuesday night he believes no strategic advantage would be gained by a major United Nations offensive in Korea.

The former Canadian brigade commander in Korea said any further advance would "lengthen U.N. lines of communication and shorten the enemy's."

Brig. Rockingham expressed belief the Reds wished to keep the Korean front open as long as they could but added he didn't think they were anxious to launch a large-scale attack on any other war front.

Mt. Everest Climbers in Final Assault

PATNA, India, Nov. 12 (AP)—Messages today from the Swiss Everest expedition said the climbers now are making their final assault on the world's highest peak.

Previously, A.E.C. officials had indicated that for security reasons it might be years before anything would be made public about the new bomb.

A.E.C. spokesman said Tuesday "we will make an announcement" as soon as possible.

There would be initial installation charge in Vancouver, possibly $100 to each TV set owner, and then a small monthly service charge. Telemeter service charges would vary—probably from 25 cents to $1 a program.

Princess Kathleen's Mate Admits Bridge Confusion

By MONTE ROBERTS, Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER, Nov. 12—The command, "hard a-starboard," from First Officer Charles W. Savage of Victoria sent Princess Kathleen driving to her death on the rocky shores of Lena Point, about 70 miles north of Juneau, Sept. 7. It was 2:58 a.m.

Mr. Savage, testifying before a public inquiry in Vancouver courthouse today, said he had been nine minutes late reporting for his watch, which was to start at midnight.

But he denied he had been drinking or that he was in any way feeling other than normal.

The chief officer told the inquiry, presided over by Mr. Justice Sidney Smith, assisted by Capt. J. F. Patrick and Capt. B. L. Johnston, he gave the starboard order to correct a port drift at about 2:50 or 2:51 a.m.

"I said to the quartermaster, 'Go to starboard,' but I neglected to tell the quartermaster to steady up," he said.

"I could see it was raining heavily. I did not know the ship was still swinging," he said.

Mr. Savage went on to explain that he was busy trying to figure what time he had to run to Skagway and that he had gone up to the log book to look. Then he picked up the glasses to look for Sentinel Island.

"I could not see it and I thought it was because it was raining heavily. I did not know the ship was still swinging," he said.

R. A. Sheppard, representing the Department of Transport, said Mr. Savage "was trying to figure what time he had to run to Skagway and that he had gone up to the log book to look. Then he picked up the glasses to look for Sentinel Island."

Continuing his story of the accident, Mr. Savage told the inquiry that he was standing in the corner of the wheelhouse when the lookout called something over the inter-communication system from his station in the bow.

"I couldn't quite understand what he said, but I heard him say 'land,'" Mr. Savage recalled.

"At that moment," he continued, "the quartermaster said: 'She is still swinging to starboard.' Then I saw land ahead and on the port side. It seemed to be a point of land two points on our port bow. So I gave the order hard-a-starboard."

"Then I moved to the starboard side of the wheelhouse, saw we were right up on the land. I ran to the telegraph but the ship had struck before I could ring down.

During the course of the examination by Mr. Sheppard, the ship's officer was asked if he had been drinking when he was ashore in Juneau that afternoon.

"I had one glass of beer," Mr. Savage said.

"You were not intoxicated?" he was asked.

"No, sir," he replied.

Mr. Savage said he was nine minutes late coming on watch because he had dropped off to sleep again after he had been called. He came on duty when the third officer called him a second time.

Sportsmanlike DRIVING

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

The clearing fires are still being kindled at Shawnigan Lake. On weekend afternoons they lift plumes of blue woodsmoke beside the water, and in the quick-falling dusk a fisherman sees them winking redly from the shore.

They're late this year—late because the men who light them have been cautious, more cautious than a lot of people, who should have known better, were in October. These are small fires of old snags, branches and roots of trees that were torn out to make space for a summer home.

Now, with the woods wet, they are being consumed. It's slash burning in miniature and it's carried off by men who won't risk the dangers of quicker, easier burning when the forests are dry.

Children in rough play clothes bring their small loads to the bonfires, throw the armfuls of twigs and branch hunks on them and then gaze into the flames, held by the mysticism of fire, warmed by it, and marveling at its colors and forms.

In time the branches, the stumps, the ubs burn down. The fire dies in its rough circle of grey and brown ash marked at its perimeter with the black line of charred stick-ends that survived the flames.

There is satisfaction in a clearing fire, a tidiness to it as it converts the rubbish into powder and stays controlled by those who lit it, doing its job and causing no danger.

You think of the practice of the small-holder clearing his land, burning after the rains come, and you contrast it with big operations firing slash in sweeps of flame that often skip boundaries and race away into good timber.

Scientific Burning

There is a science to slash burning, a science with its own equipment and its own technique. It is a procedure that starts when man's judgment has checked the elements of danger involved and has determined them negligible. And because it depends on man's judgment it is faulty.

There are humidity gauges which tell the operator when the moisture in the air seems adequate to avoid an explosive fire. But since that moisture content can change quickly and does not give a true reading of the inflammability of the woods, there are hazard sticks, too—small cylinders of wood that look like musical pipes and are made from cured door stock. They are hung in the slash area, finely balanced so that moistened by the air, they can tip the scales toward a safety reading, or dried out, can give warning of danger.

There are wind gauges to test the breeze, to measure its strength and determine whether or not fires started in slash would be carried out-of-hand. There are an assembly of mechanical equipment to cut fire trails. There are men stationed on guard about the slash area to be burned.

Yet with all these, there persists the frailties of human judgment which may miscalculate conditions and allow a fire to jump ahead and rage out of control.

These are problems the man with his small clearing fire at Shawnigan Lake doesn't encounter as he burns in the dripping days of November. They are dangers the big operator would not face if, too, were confining his slash burning to this part of the forest.

Whatever They Do

But if he did, he probably couldn't burn slash. It would be too wet. His pilot fires would smolder and go out under the rain. Next summer the slash that is becoming sodden now would dry out, would be the tinder stacked ready for a chance spark to set afire, probably to burn out of control.

The foresters study the problem. They see slash fires as a calculated risk. They worry in case the slash builds up to a point where it invites danger. They worry lest it be touched off at the wrong time. They can't afford not to burn it. They can't afford to burn it when the woods are dry. And it won't burn when the forests are wet.

To them it's a nice problem in timing, a burning issue the public notices only when its own fingers are burned.

Mayor, Two Aldermen Quit In Surprise Nanaimo Move

NANAIMO, Nov. 12.—Mayor Earle C. Westwood and two of his most experienced aldermen announced Monday night during a city council meeting that they would retire at the end of December.

The surprise announcements came within three minutes of one another.

Mayor Westwood gave business and health reasons for retiring from civic activity. He had suggested earlier in the year that he might not be able to complete his two-year term, which originally would not expire until December, 1953.

"This is the hardest thing I have attempted to do in my life," he told the council. "I know I have to devote nearly all their time to the near future many things will to the job."

C.C.F. Leader Refuses Apology to Bennett; Says Socreds Preach 'Racial Antagonism'

Speaking to a capacity audience of 600 at the Crystal Garden Tuesday night, C.C.F. leader M. J. Coldwell repeated his refusal to offer any apology to Premier W. A. C. Bennett for his reported remarks that the B.C. government is "steeped in racial prejudice."

Mr. Coldwell said he was misquoted.

"My remarks," he said, "were made not with regard to Premier Bennett's cabinet but to his party." He said that the Social Credit party has preached racial antagonism and racial hatred both in B.C. and elsewhere.

QUOTES SOLON LOW

Mr. Coldwell quoted from a copy of a broadcast made by Social Credit leader Solon Low over the B.C. in Dec. 1946. Mr. Low, he charged, said: "Do you know that the same group of international gangsters is responsible for the hungry thirties, the financing of Hitler, the promotion of World War II... blame it on the Jews."

"Hitler also spread hatred for the Jews," said Mr. Coldwell. "The gentleman (Mr. Bennett) disappointed at not getting leadership of the Conservative party, didn't realize what he was getting into... and ignorance is no excuse."

Mr. Coldwell gave the names of three films made on behalf of racial tolerance and stated they were outlawed in the province of Alberta.

New Radio, TV Policy Asked Of Liberals

OTTAWA, Nov. 12 (BUP)—Liberal party policy makers voted in favor of a separate regulatory agency for radio and television at their recent meeting here, party sources disclosed today.

The action was taken in a double-barreled resolution passed at the final session of the National Liberal Federation's advisory council meeting here last month. It called for reversal of two of the government's key radio-television policies.

Part of the resolution, urging the government to relax its ban on private enterprise development of television si present, was made public at the close of the meeting. Details of the rest of the resolution were not announced, delegates to the council meeting said, pending an effort by government and party leaders to reach a "compromise agreement" before writing it into the party records.

The resolution would call on the government to "give consideration to relieving the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation" of the responsibility of regulating private radio and television stations.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP)—One of the two senators is the committee chairman, Pat McCarran (Dem.—Nev.), who says he also thinks Trygve Lie refused to answer some questions concerning Communist Party membership.

McCarran and Senator Willis Smith (Dem.—N.C.) composed a sub-committee which heard three more American U.N. employees refuse to answer some questions concerning Communist Party membership.

The senators' search for suspected U.S. communists on the U.N. headquarters staff was resumed Tuesday. Lie's resignation on the previous day served to embarrass the committee's hearings.

HERE THERE and EVERWHERE

PREVAILING—In Ottawa the Canadian Congress of Labor announced today it will urge the government to extend collective bargaining rights to federal employees paid on a "prevailing rate" basis.

The wages of these employees at present are set by the government after consideration of rates prevailing for similar jobs in the area. The method of reaching the prevailing rate has long been in dispute.

The congress, in a resolution adopted by its executive council, urged the government "to recognize unions of its employees on a basis comparable with that guaranteed by law to the unions of other Canadian workers."

HEAVY—Traffic on the newly-opened John Hart Highway was reported still heavy today with about 150 cars a day traveling the route.

Public works office men at Prince George said most of the cars held workers from Alaska, southbound from winter layoffs.

CONCERNED—In Winnipeg safety bureau members are concerned over the number of children killed in Manitoba this year in tractor accidents.

The Chamber of Commerce bureau says fatal tractor accidents would be reduced if no one under 16 were allowed to drive a tractor on the highways.

Among the victims this year was a seven-year-old boy.

KILLED—In Havana, Cuba, a 52-year-old Spaniard shot and killed Julio Cesar Gonzalez-Rebull, co-owner of the afternoon newspaper El Crisol, Tuesday night in the suburban apartment of Cuba's leading woman television announcer.

The woman announcer, Maria Del Carmen Pereda, also a Spaniard, was wounded seriously in the jaw by the gunman and was taken to a hospital.

Police believed Matias Mateo Carreno, believed to be an insurance agent, entered Miss Pereda's apartment, while the newspaperman was visiting, pulled out a gun and began shooting.

He fired five bullets into Gonzalez-Rebull and then shot Miss Pereda.

FIRE—In Vancouver a two-alarm fire at the Sanderson Cleaners Works today caused an estimated $20,000 damage.

There was extensive damage to the wiring and contents of the plant, and to a neighboring suite.

Fireman Jack Morgan was slightly injured when a department truck failed to make a turn and knocked him down as he was handling a hose. He was treated by the first aid wagon.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 12 (UPI)—Justice of the Peace M. A. Rodriguez tossed out an unusual complaint because of lack of evidence.

A woman complained that her next-door neighbor's parrot used profanity. But the parrot refused to say a word when a group of experts and Rodriguez went to the neighbor's home.

Four Injured as Car, Army Truck Collide

Sgt. Douglas Reid Rushed to Hospital Here After Crash 18 Miles North of Nanaimo

NANAIMO, Nov. 12—Two soldiers and two civilians were taken to hospital Tuesday following a collision on the Island Highway between an army truck and a car at the Northwest Bay Logging Co. junction, 18 miles north of here.

Most seriously injured was Sgt. Douglas Reid, who was moved to H.M.C.S. Naden Hospital in Victoria. Hospital officials today said his condition is "fairly good," but that he may be suffering a fractured pelvis. Other occupant of the truck, identified as Duncan McIntyre, was reported in fairly good condition, with head injuries.

Driving the private car was Erleif, well-known Nanaimo businessman, who suffered chest and other undetermined injuries. His passenger, Greig Young, also of Nanaimo, suffered a fractured leg.

Richard Corner, 27, of 164 Sims, in "satisfactory" condition. He was knocked down by a car at Kings and Douglas early Sunday morning, suffering a fractured leg, severe shock and other injuries.

LIE RESIGNATION BRINGS RED BLAST

L. B. Pearson Has No Comment on Rumor He Is in Line as U.N. Secretary-General

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 11 (AP)—Trygvie Lie's dramatic decision to quit the chief executive job in the United Nations drew a blast against him from Russia tonight, sarcasm from a U.S. senator, and a request from Britain and others that he stay on the job.

Those mentioned most prominently as probable choices for secretary-general if Lie's resignation is accepted are Carlos Romulo of the Philippines and Assembly President L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister. Pearson told a reporter today he would make "no comment whatsoever" on the situation.

WANT LIE TO STAY

1. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain led in the invitation for Lie to reconsider and stay here.

2. Lie's announced reason for quitting—to remove a stumbling block to Korean peace dealings—was rejected by U.S. Senator Pat McCarran, Nevada Democrat and chairman of the senate sub-committee which is looking into alleged U.S. Communists in the U.N. secretariat.

McCarran said in New York he believed Lie resigned because "of disclosures made and disclosures we will make in the future." McCarran said Lie's stated reasons reminded him of a Thanksgiving pumpkin: "It looked good but it was hollow."

3. An interview with Lie published in three Scandinavian newspapers—in his hometown of Oslo and in Copenhagen and Stockholm—said Lie emphatically denied the McCarran inquiry influenced his decision to resign.

The Scandinavian interview quoted the secretary-general as saying he thought Russia's non-recognition of him might have stood in the way of peace in Korea and that in the long run no man could bear the kind of pressure the Russians put on him.

4. Moscow radio "recognized" Lie as U.N. secretary-general—for the first time since the Russians started ignoring him in 1950—in an abusive broadcast saying his resignation showed "his complete political bankruptcy."

Russians at the U.N. said they would wait and see who might be proposed by the western powers before deciding what they would do as regards a successor.

U.S. CASUALTIES IN KOREA UP 1,318; TOTAL 125,887

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—The United States Defense Department today reported 1,318 Korean battle casualties in a week's fighting—the largest weekly increase in a year.

This brought to 125,887 the total of Americans killed, wounded and missing in action since the war began.

The department's weekly summary reported:

	Increase	New	Total
Killed in action	266	19,712
Wounded	962	93,237
Missing	90	12,938
Total		1,318	125,887

Fort St. John Woman Victim of Polio

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C., Nov. 12 (BUP)—A 30-year-old Fort St. John woman died Tuesday of polio, an hour before she was to have been flown to Vancouver's General Hospital—a board-and-tube R.C.A.F. mercy plane.

The Dakota mercy plane was based at Sicamous and was piloted by F.O. T. Futer.

The victim—Mrs. E. Eckland—was British Columbia's 30th polio death of the year.

What Does Mr. Bennett Mean?

THE PUBLIC ON BRITISH CO- lumbia, not being as ingenious as its government, will hardly understand Premier Bennett's latest dictum on hospital insurance.

He says that the payment of insurance premiums is still compulsory but people who refuse to pay will not be prosecuted. In other words, everybody is urged to pay his premium but no action will be taken against him if he does not pay. The government relies on exhortation to keep the scheme going.

Mr. Bennett adds that he favors a maximum of liberty for all (a worthy sentiment) but that liberty does not give any man the right to drive on the wrong side of the road. Does Mr. Bennett imagine that people would all drive on the right side if the police did not prosecute them for driving on the wrong? Does he think that any law can be enforced without the final threat of sanctions?

If no one is to be prosecuted for refusing to pay hospital premiums a large part of the population soon will decide not to pay. It is true that those who do not pay will not be insured. If they go to hospitals they will be presented with heavy bills for service. The provident man will not take this chance. He will regard hospital insurance as a profitable investment in security. But many men are not that provident. They will take a chance, hoping that they and their families will not have to go to hospital.

As a result there will soon be two groups in the community—the insured and the uninsured. Among the uninsured there will be thousands who, on entering hospital, will be unable to meet the present high charges. Yet they must be treated. No civilized community can refuse to treat the sick. Who will pay the cost of their treatment? In one way or another the community will have to pay. The hospitals may run huge deficits, as they did before insurance was established, but in the end they will have to be rescued by the taxpayers, civic or provincial.

Thus through their premiums or through their taxes later on the people who pay insurance will have to finance many of their neighbors, who drop out of the insurance scheme. And most of those neighbors are quite capable of paying premiums if they want to.

The people who voluntarily pay premiums will not long be content with such a one-sided bargain. They will soon realize that the government's plan of "compulsory" insurance without compulsion is bound to destroy universal hospital insurance altogether in due time.

Perhaps this is what the government desires. It proposed in the last election a system of voluntary insurance. It has not dared to implement that promise directly because it knows that the great majority of British Columbians would not accept it in such naked form.

Instead, the government appears to be introducing a voluntary and restricted system through the back door. It will destroy the present system quietly, by degrees.

The government is quite entitled to destroy the present system, if it can secure the support of the people through the legislature. It is entitled to establish a restricted, voluntary system if that is what the public wants, though it is difficult to see what will then happen to the hospitals which are now geared completely to a compulsory, universal scheme.

The government is not entitled to destroy the present scheme and erect something else without telling the public exactly what it is doing and why. Mr. Bennett, attacking the newspapers for confusing the public mind, is only adding to the confusion. If he knows what the government intends assuredly the public does not.

New Try At An Old Problem

THE COMMENT OF MR. ANTHONY EDEN to reporters on his arrival in New York, that the U.N. Assembly's "most important work is Korea, to try for an armistice," is perhaps representative of western public opinion today. But while it gives top priority to settlement of the shooting war between aggressors and democracy, it also recognizes the drastic revision that has occurred in the United Nations' objectives since the first troops were rushed in to stop the North Korean invasion more than two years ago.

After the first few days of emergency measures it became generally agreed that the aim of the U.N. was to defeat the North Korean invaders and unify the peninsula under a democratic administration—a unification which had been balked since the close of the Second World War by Communist refusal to permit United Nations representatives even to enter the territory.

The success of the Allied forces in pushing as far north as the Yalu River raised hopes that this aim might be accomplished. But other factors came into play. The "calculated risk" involved in the Yalu advance became an actuality. Chinese manpower, backed by Russian equipment, entered the struggle. The battle lines returned south, eventually to become more or less stabilized in their present positions.

Largely the cause of that stalemate was the true talk, begun at Kaesong and continued until recently at Panmunjom. But the talks themselves became deadlocked over the question of prisoner repatriation. The U.N. holds that prisoners who do not wish to return to Communist control need not do so; the Communists insist that they should be returned by force.

The question involves an important point of principle for the United Nations forces. Men and women who surrendered, in many cases at great cost and effort, to escape Communist domination, should not be handed over for such retaliation as the Reds may set fit to inflict. On the other hand, the Communists will suffer a severe loss of face.

The Next Victim Could Be You

VICTORIA WROTE ANOTHER chapter in its history of highway tragedy last week end with one person killed and two others sent to hospital seriously injured. The story was not unique. News items from other parts of the continent repeat the pattern of death and disability from car accidents.

All mishaps cannot be avoided. Most of them could be. Many of them would not occur if drivers and pedestrians observed the rules of common sense and courtesy which should be ingredients of driving.

In an effort to draw pointed attention to certain practices of good driving, this newspaper is giving prominence to

Chips

By DAVID BROCK

IT is always interesting and reassuring to see one's children showing signs of one's own bad habits. Until then, one had been afraid one was an isolated freak, had not one? One had. But maybe I am an isolated freak at that, to be cheered up in so perverse a fashion. So that when I say "one," I mean quite literally one (1).

It is possible that no other parent feels this way, or at least admits it. Whether my children are getting their bad habits from heredity or from environment can scarcely matter to my pride or modesty . . . either way, they get it all from their old man.

And that's nice for them, too, because later on they can blame me to their psychologists.

One of their bad habits is referring to various familiar persons by means of nicknames . . . not as a joke (however feeble) but because it is a quick and lazy way of indicating the person they mean. For example, a local gardener named Williamson is never called Mr. Williamson, but simply the Bon Man, because he is always lighting bonfires. The Bon Man has been the Bon Man for almost 10 years now, and the Bon Man he will die . . . after many more years of bonfires, I trust. Similarly, the "Just Mary" person who tells children's stories somewhat breathlessly on the radio on Sunday mornings is never called Mary anything. She is the Ran-and-Ran Woman, because she is forever saying "And he ran, and he ran, and he ran, and then he ran," in a rather maddening way. She can't stop saying it, so the children can't stop calling her.

Even if she did stop, they'd still call her that, after all these years. Take the Green Man. He was called the Green Man because he fished under our windows from a green boat. He sold the green boat long ago and bought a brown one, but he is still the Green Man. (He has nothing to do with the pub called the Green Man, somewhere around the King's Road on the northern fringe of Chelsea.) And it was the same with the Half-painted Woman when I was a child myself. She was called the Half-painted Woman because she lived in a house that was only half painted . . . her name had nothing to do with her own strange theories about personal beauty. Her house finally got more or less painted all over, but she remained the Half-painted Woman. I mean, what else could you call her, dammit?

BURNING UP THE CINDER TRACK

The Half-painted Woman was always pretty hard up, poor soul. And I fancy she was even harder up when her son, the Half-painted Boy, began to get in trouble with the police. (Unless, of course, he managed to do better than break even with his career. They say crime doesn't pay, but a lot depends on which branch you're in, I suppose.) In one way, though, the Half-painted Woman was much luckier than most widowed mothers of half-painted and criminal sons. For a time she had a tough job finding fuel. But then the city filled the muddy lanes of her district with cinders.

Elithé these were mighty unusual cinders of the Half-painted Woman had an unusual stove. Month after month, year after year, those lanes boiled water for her tea and heated her house.

And when last I saw the lanes, 15 years ago, they looked good for a generation yet. I suppose it's a long lane that's not worth burning. But these were pretty long ones too. Of course she made them last even longer by not taking baths. This system not only helped to spin the lanes out, but made her look half painted herself. She got to look so muddy, a top-dressing of nice cinders would have improved her own appearance. Ah me, those were the days.

WITH OR WITHOUT SALT

The Moss Troopers were freebooters who infested the Scottish border around 1650. According to E. J. Miller, an anthropologist, they sometimes ate their enemies. I don't know whether it was for thirst or revenge or just a joke. Now I am often accused of saying harsh and mocking things about my wife's countrymen, the Scots. But so help me, I'd never have said, even in the wildest jest, that any Scots were cannibals only 300 years ago. Honestly, I'd have made it 400 years ago at the very least. I still take E. J. Miller with a grain of salt. Maybe the Moss Troopers ate their victims with a grain of salt, too, him? My wife informs me that her own ancestors on the Border scorned to eat Englishmen. Any time they ran out of English cattle, they just stole a few English horses and ate those. Hence, their name Coulthard, or colt-herd.

NO MEAN MIEN

Nobody will ever be able to figure out a surefire way of giving all law-abiding men one kind of mien and all transgressors another.

Some of the nicest faces we ever saw were in a batch of rogues' gallery photos we pored over once after a burglar had visited our home.

Our burglar's portrait wasn't among them, but he was duly caught anyway, and he wasn't a bad-looking chap.

RELUCTANT MORALITY

While wealth accumulates in these United States, man seems to decay. Corruption corrodes our political and industrial doings . . . A pervading relativism, an absence of conviction about what is the good life . . . blunts the proddings of conscience, takes the zest out of living, creates a general boredom . . . Our alleged gaiety is not spontaneous. Our boredom results not only in a reluctant morality but in shockingly bad manners, which most of us do not even know are bad manners.

PARKS BOARD

Quick rejection by Victoria aldermen of the sensible suggestion for a parks board shows the business efficiency with which our council acts when their authority appears at stake.

Whether Victoria is called a bit of old England, old China or just itself, it will remain a natural tourist resort and should be developed as such.

City councils come and go, but public parks live on forever and should be planned and developed by a permanent parks-board in Canada's most beautiful city.

GRASS ROOTS

As the municipal elections are near a letter or two on this subject should be timely.

Today, in spite of high taxes, municipalities are hard up, resulting in reduced services. Municipal taxes have doubled, provincial taxes tripled, but federal taxes have gone up eight times. Thus, not enough of our tax money is kept and used at the municipal level. It is well to remember that the citizens pay all the taxes to the three levels of government.

All the candidates in the election seemed aware of this tax problem and promised or suggested something should be done. Let's hold them to it by vigorous and sustained reminders. Then a somewhat larger proportion of our tax dollar would be kept at the local level. This would, in turn, relieve the home taxes.

Mr. Drew and Gold Coins

Saturday Night

We doubt whether Mr. Drew has adequately considered all the consequences which would flow from the policy which he advocates of allowing Canadians to possess gold coins. There are two forms in which that policy might be adopted, and he has not explained which of them he advocates, though in their ultimate consequences they are very different.

Canada might permit the free movement of gold coins within Canadian territory while continuing to prohibit individuals from exporting them out of that territory. This would lead to an enormous accumulation of gold in private hands as a hedge against further depreciation of the currency—for the prospect of a given weight of gold diminishing in value seems vastly less remote than the prospect of the Canadian dollar doing so. Since all the gold in Canada is now in the possession of the government except what is needed for the dental and jewelry industries, this would lead to a heavy drain on the country's gold reserves. Admittedly they are now so high that they could lose a good deal without serious consequences; but the drain might very well become enormous, and at the expense of bank deposits and government bonds, the forms on which Canadians chiefly rely for keeping their funds liquid.

Or Canada might go further and permit the export of this gold. This would withdraw it, not only from circulation, but also from Canada, and would put Canada in the position of maintaining the gold convertibility of its currency in a world in which no other important country is doing anything of the kind. It is highly questionable whether Canada could maintain this free convertibility for any length of time, and a policy of that kind which was not permanent could have only disastrous effects.

The prohibition of private holdings of currency gold is the only means by which a nation can retain the power of revaluing its unit of currency at a lower value. The value of gold is fixed by the world market, and if Canada is full of privately held five-dollar gold pieces, nothing can prevent the dollar remaining at whatever value the world market assigns to one-fifth of the amount of gold in that gold piece. That was an admirable system in 1914, when everybody was practicing it; it would be an impossible system for Canada alone in 1952, when nobody else is practicing it.

"Few stories," said the Elevator Man, "lose much in the retelling. It's a poor story teller who can't add something to a yarn he's heard. Didn't there use to be some story about a boy who swallowed a black cat?" But it seems it started out as a remark about a boy who was seen eating a piece of meat nearly as black as a crow. The next person to recount the information made it nearly as big as a crow . . . big as an eagle . . . big as a rabbit . . . big as a cat . . . big as a dog . . . big as a goat . . . and so on. The horse was the final stop. Somebody probably thought nobody'd believe him if he made it an elephant. Mezzanine!

"So," said the Elevator Man, "it pays to examine what you hear. That's what that girl had in mind when she questioned the Hollywood actor. It seems he'd already been married five times and each time divorced. He was wooing a sixth prospect and the girl says, 'But I've heard some queer stories about you.' Think nothing of them," says the movie star. "They're probably just old wives' tales."

Goats, Cats And Humanity

INDIGNATION

The recent news of the slaying of a prize goat belonging to Mrs. Edward Smart, Glenford Avenue, has been read with much indignation. Such an act of vandalism must have been done with careful forethought on the part of the perpetrator, and if such a character should go unapprehended it would no doubt result in more of the same conduct.

Would a prize cow treated in a similar manner have aroused us to more indignation? A goat is as carefully raised and prized by its owner as any other animal, and the death of such a goat is not the only consideration as its future progeny are to be considered as a loss to the owner.

The S.P.C.A. has the jurisdiction to arrest any person found ill-treating an animal even if the animal is so treated by its owner, and in this case the animal was stolen.

SCAT!

I have been a silent, interested follower of the readers' column in your very fine paper for quite a while.

However, being a parent forces me to disagree, and therefore pen a reply to Miss Dunbar's letter in a recent edition of the Times.

I trust she is unmarried, and naturally without children, due to her failure to indicate her marital status and also by her "kind" consideration of parents, in closing her letter. (Surprised apologies if I'm wrong.)

Cats! If the energy expended in protection of cats was used to better the living conditions of the more unfortunate members of the human race, I am sure there would be no needy people in Victoria, if nowhere else. Some people even leave the scrappy beasts sizeable fortunes! Cats indeed!

The "cowardly, sadistic boys" who recently tortured cats in this city have been punished sufficiently, I am sure. Their punishment was meted out by qualified people in what manner they saw fit, and if the punishment wasn't publicized, it must mean that it is no concern of those who heard nothing of it.

Look, if someone is so anxious to have something publicized, why not try finding out the names of the two dairies who watered down milk a short while ago. I am sure even the cats lost weight in that locality. A dastardly trick!

There is a question or two to be asked before we condemn "cat killers" to the "chamber of horrors" or some such other place.

Thousands on Island Honor Lost But Long-Remembered Warriors

Hundreds of thousands of Vancouver Island residents—some at outdoor services, some in churches, and some in the privacy of their homes—stood silently for two minutes Tuesday morning, and bowed their heads in memory of those who went to war and never returned.

Remembrance Day services were held in most island centres. Largest was a ceremony arranged by the Canadian Legion at the Cenotaph in Victoria.

An estimated crowd of 6,000 was on hand despite bad weather. A fine rain fell right up until start of the ceremony at 11. Then, as artillerymen fired their field piece to mark the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, the rain ceased.

Rev. William Hills, former naval chaplain, conducted the service, assisted by C. A. Gill, secretary of the Pro Patria Branch, Canadian Legion. The band of H.M.C.S. Naden attended and played for the singing of "O Valiant Hearts" and "The Silent Tribute."

Mrs. Richard Fernyhough, whose son was lost in the Second World War while serving with the R.C.A.F., placed a wreath on the memorial for all bereaved mothers. She wore on the right side of her coat the D.F.C., awarded her son posthumously.

Lieut.-Gov. Clarence Wallace was first of many officials to place wreaths at the base of the war memorial. He was followed by His Excellency Ramji Ram-Saksema, Indian high commissioner to Canada, visiting here for the day.

Other wreaths were placed by Premier W. A. C. Bennett, Mayor Claude Harrison, representatives of church, R.C.M.P., armed services and veterans' groups.

Many individuals placed wreaths and bouquets as well.

One floral tribute bore a card: "In loving memory of Eddy and his crew . . . mum, dad and Doris." The flowers were for Flt. Sgt. E. H. White, who was lost while serving with the renowned Pathfinder Squadron.

Another 11 o'clock outdoor service was held at Esquimalt Memorial Park, where Rev. Earl Sigston, R.C.N. chaplain, officiated. Commodore B. R. Spencer, superintendent of H.M.C. Dockyard, was senior officer present at the service, attended by many naval men.

Catholic citizens attended a service at St. Andrew's Cathedral during the morning at which

Solemn High Mass of Requiem was sung. Most Rev. James M. Hill, Bishop of Victoria, took part, with Rev. P. Dufour, Esquimalt Garrison chaplain, as celebrant, assisted by Rev. J. Planeta, as deacon, and Rev. D. Lehane as sub-deacon. Rev. L. Dougan, R.C.N. chaplain, gave the sermon.

Members of the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment, veterans of the regiment, and members of their families gathered at the Pioneer Square Memorial shortly before 12 for a simple service there, in honor of regimental war dead.

Rev. J. L. W. McLean, regimental chaplain, officiated.

The traditional lament "Flowers of the Forest" was played by Pipe Major A. Pollock and members of the Scottish pipe band.

Still yet another service was held at 3 p.m. at Oak Bay's War Memorial, Beach Drive. Archdeacon A. E. DeL. Nunns and Rev. W. W. McPherson conducted this service. Choirs from both St. Mary's and Oak Bay United Churches were on hand.

On Monday, day before Remembrance Day, war veterans employed by the provincial government, held their own special service in the rotunda of the Legislative Buildings. Dean Philip Beattie, of Christ Church Cathedral, read the prayer there.

Up-island veterans and residents turned out in large numbers for many ceremonies held in their cities.

At Nanaimo, members of the Canadian Legion held a short service at the cemetery, then met again at 10:15 for a parade to the Cenotaph for an 11 a.m. observance.

Nanaimo Pipe Band accompanied the parade to and from the Cenotaph.

Canadian Legion Branch No. 37 and Army, Navy and Air Force veterans contributed to the solemn parade and service held at the cairn in Memorial Park, Beacon Avenue, in Sidney.

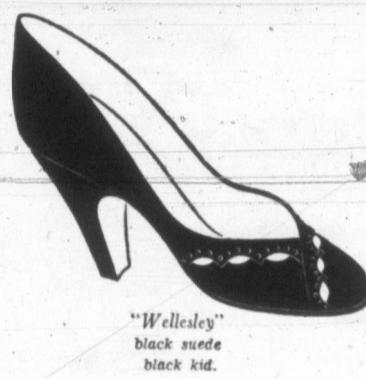

At the Duncan Cross of Sacrifice, following two minutes' silence marked by blasts of the fire siren, prayers and lessons were given by Rev. F. H. Goliath, Rev. E. M. Wills, Rev.

"A very valuable citizen"

When a bank manager was transferred recently a group of citizens wrote the bank in tribute to his sense of public service:

"During the time he was here, we found him to be a very valuable citizen. He always took a deep interest in our community, so we feel we have lost a valuable asset. However, we feel sure that his replacement will be made with a man of similar calibre."

A bank man, by the very nature of his work, becomes part of the life around him. During his training in various branches, and as he takes on growing responsibilities, he learns more and more about people and how his bank can help them. And he brings to his community his personal readiness to serve in any way he can.

Bishop Stars in Vampire Victory

Vampires 16, Royal Roads 6

By DENNY BOYD

There was a great deal of consternation caused Tuesday in the first game of the two-game, total-point series between Vampires and Royal Roads for the city junior Canadian football championship at Heywood Avenue Park.

Cause of the befuddlement was a 17-year-old Vampire halfback who is about the size of a pint of milk half split.

Briefly, the fans didn't know who he was and Royal Roads didn't know how to stop him.

Eventually the fans found out that he was second-stringer Chuck Bishop but the cadets are still trying to figure out how to stop him as Vampires' 16-4 victory will attest.

The heavily-favored defending champion cadets are in a precarious position as they must make up a 10-point deficit in Saturday's second game if they are to run their championship streak to three straight years.

Bishop, although he appeared only briefly in the game, was the lad who sent an estimated 2,000 rain-soaked fans home mumbbling to themselves.

He was with the Vampire midgets last year and spent most of this season on the bench as a result of an ankle injury.

THRILLING RUNS

But Tuesday he streaked to two spectacular fourth-quarter touchdowns within three minutes of each other to wipe out a Royal Roads' lead and give Coach Ray Mitchell's youngsters the decision.

A torrential downpour that started five minutes before the kickoff turned the field into a morass, but both clubs turned in excellent football despite the conditions.

Neither club could get rolling in the first quarter although the cadets had a definite offensive edge.

In the second quarter, Royal Roads' kicker Robertson hoisted a booming punt that the Vampire safety man fumbled. Cadet halfback Steve Oaks streaked in to recover the ball and gave the cadets a first down on the Vampire 23-yard line.

Viduals Defeat Pils, U.B.C. Nips Merchants

Individual Cleaners and Army took advantage of Vancouver strengths and weaknesses Monday to vault into a two-way tie for the leadership of the Commercial Hockey League.

The Cleaners, first Victoria team to play a regular league game in Vancouver, hung a 3-2 defeat on Vancouver Pilgrims at Kerrisdale, while at home, Army confounded a packed house at Memorial Arena by dumping Navy 4-1. In the second game of the home bill, the visiting University of British Columbia gave the cleaners and soldiers an assist by edging Victoria Merchants 3-2.

Individuals and Army have five points each, while Navy and Merchants are tied with three points each. Games with the Vancouver teams are counted in the league standings.

Army's job on Navy was the big surprise on an entertaining card at home. Though only trounced 10-2 just a week before, the soldiers held a wide edge and jumped on the many defensive lapses of the Navy squad.

Bob Maude of Navy and Army's Felix Lange kept their nets free of goals in the first period and Army went one up when Bob Coulter scored on a snap shot at 5:33 of the second period. Outskating a Navy defense that was slow getting back, Army rapped in another goal in the second period and two more in the third period. Doug Johnson ruined Lange's shutout in the third period.

Although they were roundly outplayed on the forward line, U.B.C. sported a strong and aggressive defense that thwarted the Merchant power plays.

A.L. BATTERS BEWARE; SHANTZ GOOD AS NEW

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12 (AP)—The mighty left arm of little Bobby Shantz is out of a cast and as good as new, the 24-game winner reported to his Philadelphia Athletic bosses.

Shantz, whose-left wrist was fractured by a pitched ball served up by Walt Masterson of Washington Senators Sept. 23, had a few anxious moments, though, after telling manager Jimmy Dykes the good news Tuesday.

Dykes and general manager Art Ehlers, with a few sly winks, eyed Bobby's healed arm suspiciously and hinted that it might be best for it to be X-rayed before getting around to talking contract for 1953.

Shantz took the kidding seriously and hurried to hospital to have the arm X-rayed. Doctors said it is in perfect condition.

Going Down the Line

It was line abreast in Tuesday's McKechnie Cup rugby match at Macdonald Park at this juncture, North Shore's Pete McQueen lugging the leather. Left to right, are Crimson Tide's Gordy Pynn, North Shore's Ossie Gjerlain, McQueen and Colin Blythe and Jim Mill of the Tide.

They were outplayed, outfought at times, but certainly not outrun.

They had an 11-0 lead . . . were down 13-11 with five minutes remaining in the contest . . . but they won.

They are Victoria's Crimson Tide as opposed by Vancouver North-Shore in the opening game of the McKechnie Cup rugby series at Macdonald Park Tuesday before a wet, but enthusiastic crowd of over 400.

Those courageous enough to defy the weather were rewarded with sparkling three-line runs on the part of the Tide and powerful forward play as demonstrated by North-Shore ending in a thrilling three-quarter moment that spelled a 16-13 victory for the Tide.

The wet ball had no effect on Henderson who completed five out of five passes, four of them to Sure-fingered "Killer" Johnston.

RAYMENT ROMPS

With half a minute left in the game, cadet captain Ross Raymond pulled off a beautiful run, powering his way for 40 yards before being knocked out of bounds. Henderson nullified any further cadet chances when he intercepted Price's pass on the next play.

The wet ball had no effect on Henderson who completed five out of five passes, four of them to Sure-fingered "Killer" Johnston.

OPENING SCORE

Gary Pynn notched the first points with an easy penalty kick after a Tide run had fallen inches short of completion.

Fumbling of the slippery ball by the redshirts almost resulted in return disaster, North-Shore's John Renfrew kicking wide on a penalty attempt.

Tide standoff Ray Calton then came up with his many pretty runs as he filtered through the defense and quick kicked. He and Gordy Pynn dribbled the ball 25 yards into North-Shore's end zone where Paul Beck finally captured the elusive ball after two defenders missed it.

Pynn's convert went wide to leave the score at 6-0.

LONG JAUNT

Five minutes later Shore's Ian Strachan was ordered off the field for unnecessary charging after Scott had touched down the ball in his own end zone.

Jim Mill, one of the best Tide players on the field flipped the ball to Calton from a loose scrum and neatly faked his way 50 yards through and around the visitors' defense to plant the ball behind the uprights.

Pynn made good on the easy convert to widen the margin to 11-0.

North Shore then came to life as their forwards took command, a control they exercised practically throughout the rest of the contest.

Crimson Tide: Scott, Pynn, McKenzie, Johnson, Hume, Colton, Stead, Bourke, Ted Martin, Turner, Blythe, Beck, Mills, Fowler, Young.

NANAIMO SURPRISES IN LOSS TO CITY ALL-STARS

Tuesday's traditional Armistice Day downpour kept the major portion of Victoria's soccer population from seeing a bang-up soccer game as a surprisingly strong Nanaimo Eagles club gave it everything they had before bowing to the superior firepower of the Victoria and District Football Association all-stars at Athlete Park, 20.

Following the match, association secretary Don Gray said he would bet his best shirt that, on a dry field, the Nanaimo club would be on a par with any all-star club the association could find.

Besides keeping the crowd down, the rain made the field slow and the ball heavy but the calibre of soccer was pleasing to the few brave fans who witnessed it.

Nanaimo's well-coordinated passing between backs and forwards kept Victoria's attack bogged down until midway through the first half.

Stamps Score Early, Then Hang on for Narrow Victory

Calgary 5, Victoria 4

By BILL WALKER

The record (and the tune) are getting shopworn, but . . . It's gettin' so that Victoria Cougars can't win for losin', though not for the lack of tryin'.

It happened again Tuesday night as the vaunted Stampeders from Calgary left their heel-prints in Memorial Arena's "mushy" ice to the tune of a 5-4 triumph that was in doubt until the final bitter seconds.

Third of the Prairie constituents of the Western Hockey League to show here, the Stamps put the Cougars behind the gun early and kept them there as did their fellow riders of the plains, Edmonton Flyers (2-1) and Saskatoon Quakers (4-2). It was the Cougars seventh loss as against one victory and one tie since October 18.

The Stamps, voted by many as the team most likely to succeed, though coach Hank Blade, who spoke in the aforementioned deplorable tones about Victoria's ice, casts his vote for Saskatoon, were hangin' by their saddle horns when it was over. But they were hangin' tight and that's what counted in the end result.

The game was only nine minutes old when the Stamps must have thought "my, what a pleasant diversion" for the scoreboard read, Calgary 3, Victoria 0.

Agar Scored on First Stamp Sortie

George Agar blasted the first puck home just 19 seconds after it was dropped by referee "Scoty" Morrison. But even though the Cougars had their first good chance, forward Ernie Roche missing an open pass from Jack McIntyre.

Two penalties later, Gus Kyle of the Stamps and Ed Mazur of the Cougars being the miscreants, the Stamps had scored again, Archie Scott picking up an errant puck and slapping it past Jerry Cotnoir four seconds after Mazur returned to the ice.

Sid Finney got a clean break from the Calgary blue line to pull Cotnoir out of his pads and slide the third Calgary goal home at 8:12 and what had the earmarks of a rout was fast in the making.

However, the Cougars, with Mazur returned to the ice.

Wayne Robertson of Esquimalt Boxing Club and Jackie Wilson of Burnaby seem to be all "trapped" up in their work at Tuesday's boxing card at the Canadian Legion Auditorium. Robertson Suffers Surprising Defeat

Jackie Wilson of Burnaby Lions Boxing Club scored the major upset on the Victoria Amateur Boxing Association's 10-round holiday card Tuesday with a surprising T.K.O. victory over Victoria's Wayne Robertson, former B.C. featherweight champion.

McGaw of Esquimalt scored a narrow decision over Rusty Groppe of Fire Department in the 79-pound class.

Gordon Rab of Fire Department was winner by decision over Freddy Bay of St. Louis College in the other small-fry bout.

TROPHY PRESENTED

Dr. Jack Patterson presented the "Knowles Memorial Trophy," emblematic of the club championship, to Esquimalt coach Nick Lystar. Esquimalt won three out of the first five bouts to capture the silverware.

VEZINA TROPHY BOUND

Henry Scores Third Shutout

It's early in the National Hockey League season to talk about the Vezina Trophy, but the name of Sugar Jim Henry is being whispered.

Sugar Jim, one of the most travelled goalies in the business, is far ahead in the goalkeepers' race with a torrid 1.17 average for the first 13 games of the scheduled 16. In addition, he has three shutouts to his credit—two more than any other netminder in the circuit.

Toronto Maple Leafs were his latest victims in the whitewash department Tuesday when Boston scored a 4-0 victory in a Remembrance Day matinee.

The Bruins, who moved ahead of Detroit into fourth place in the league standings as a result of the victory, exploded for four goals in the first period and then settled down to solid defensive play to give Sugar Jim his second shutout in his last three games.

Henry's opposite in the Toronto nets, Harry Lumley, celebrating his 26th birthday, gave him a boost when he hooked the first goal into the Toronto nets. It was credited to Joe Klukay. The other Boston marksmen were Real Chevrefils, Hal Laycoe and Fleming Mackell.

POOR CROWD

The matinee experiment, an attempt to bolster the sagging gate, was far from a success. The 7,861 fans just more than half-filled the big rink. At night a basketball exhibition attracted 13,900 customers.

Early-Bird Esk Fans Hail Champs' Return

EDMONTON, Nov. 12 (CP)—Edmonton Eskimos, champions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, began arriving at the municipal airport before dawn today to a right royal reception.

Two aircraft landed in the pre-dawn darkness and the fans were ready and waiting. But the main welcoming was planned for later this afternoon.

That's when a civic reception with bands and fans was planned at the Edmonton airport.

Look what happened before dawn. Quarterback Claude Arnold was the only Eskimo aboard a plane that landed at 3:05 a.m., M.S.T.

But 41 happy fans were on hand. They made so much noise that an early-bird announcer with a tape recorder had difficulty getting an interview for a morning sports show. "Boy, they're pretty happy aren't they," Arnold drawled. He came in advance of the team to meet his father, who returned to Oklahoma early today.

Then Arnold praised the defensive work his club turned in when they defeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers 22-11 to take the best-of-three final series 2-1. "How's Indian Jack Jacobs?" he was asked.

"I feel awfully sorry for him . . . he'll take the brunt of this because he's the quarterback."

The second explosion came three hours later.

Some of the top-of-the-morning fans waited in the airport coffee shop for the second plane.

They were joined by another 200 fans when such stars as Rol-

Smash Favored Bombers in Deciding Playoff Contest

WINNIPEG, Nov. 12 (CP)—Edmonton's fabulous Eskimos roared into the Grey Cup final, brushing aside the Blue Bombers on the way in.

Proving again they're the team to beat when the chips are down, the resolute Eskimos Tuesday whipped the favored Bombers 22-11 to take the Western Canada football title with two straight—and smart—victories.

In winning the deciding game of the best-of-three series, they became the first Edmonton club to reach the Canadian final in 30 years.

A champion's welcome awaited them in Edmonton, where delirious fans never were in any doubt as to the outcome.

The amazing Eskimos were counted out after their 28-12 defeat at home in the first game against the Bombers, but they surged back to win the second, 18-12, last Saturday, forcing the saw-off.

It was after the second game that Frankie Flinchok predicted flatly "we'll win" the West and Grey Cup finals.

The east-west classic will be played at Toronto's Varsity Stadium, Nov. 29, an event no Edmonton team has made since 1922, when the Eskimos lost, 13-1, to Queen's University. In the previous year—the only other time Edmonton represented the west—they lost, 23-0, to Toronto Argonauts.

A champion's welcome awaited them in Edmonton, where delirious fans never were in any doubt as to the outcome.

The amazing Eskimos were counted out after their 28-12 defeat at home in the first game against the Bombers, but they surged back to win the second, 18-12, last Saturday, forcing the saw-off.

It was after the second game that Frankie Flinchok predicted flatly "we'll win" the West and Grey Cup finals.

The east-west classic will be played at Toronto's Varsity Stadium, Nov. 29, an event no Edmonton team has made since 1922, when the Eskimos lost, 13-1, to Queen's University. In the previous year—the only other time Edmonton represented the west—they lost, 23-0, to Toronto Argonauts.

In winning the deciding game of the best-of-three series, they became the first Edmonton club to reach the Canadian final in 30 years.

Salmon

Make this

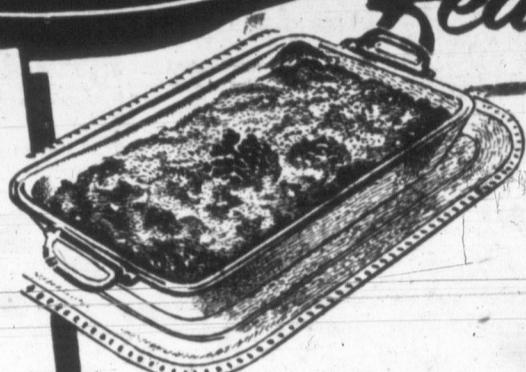

Canned Salmon Loaf

1 lb. Canned Salmon, flaked
1½ cups Milk
¾ cup Bread Crumbs
3 Eggs, separated
2 tablespoons Lemon Juice
½ teaspoon Lemon Rind
Salt and Pepper

Scald milk, add crumbs and cook five minutes stirring constantly, add egg yolks and stir over hot water (double boiler) for five minutes, still stirring. Cool slightly—stir in fish, seasoning, lemon juice and rind—finally fold in beaten egg whites. Turn into well-greased dish, set this in hot water and bake for ¾ hour at 350°-375° degrees Fahrenheit. Serve four.

BAD BREATH - "KISSING SWEET" in seconds

NEW!
CLORETS Chlorophyll
Mints
CLORETS—the sensational breath
freshener—now come in tasty
mints as well as delicious chewing gum.

CLORETS—with active chlorophyll—
banish breath odors from such causes as:
ONIONS, GARLIC, SMOKING, ALCOHOL

THE NEW CLORETS MINTS ARE SO
REFRESHING, SO DELIGHTFULLY MINTY,
YOU'LL MUNCH THEM WITH PLEASURE.
YET—like CLORETS Chewing Gum—these new mints make your breath "Kissing Sweet" in seconds.

ACTIVE CHLOROPHYLL... It's simply amazing how fast CLORETS Mints or CLORETS Chewing Gum banish breath odors, even after onions, garlic, smoking or alcohol. You see, CLORETS contain active chlorophyll, that powerful green deodorant (found in all growing plants). It's true, water soluble chlorophyll. Not imitation! Not synthetic!

MAKE THIS KISS TEST
Eat onions. Smoke. Or take a drink. Now munch CLORETS Mints or chew CLORETS Gum. Next, exchange a kiss. You'll discover your breath is "Kissing Sweet".

THE CAINE MUTINY

Twenty-first installment from the book THE CAINE MUTINY, copyright 1951, by Herman Wouk. Distributed by Doubleday Syndicate.

"Well, sir, as to a definite yes-and-no commitment on that nobody can predict the future and I can only say that with the limited resources at my command I will to the utmost of my ability strive to carry out any orders I may receive, combat or otherwise, and—as I say—"

"You'd be happier, if the Bureau had given you another assignment, wouldn't you?"

Queeg grimed with one side of his mouth. "Sir, I respectfully submit that that's a question nobody could care to answer, not even the admiral."

"True enough," Grace paced in silence for a long time. Then he said, "Commander Queeg, I believe it's possible to transfer you to a state-side assignment—with no reflection whatever," he added hastily, "on your performance of duties aboard the Caine. The transfer would be a simple correction of an unjust and erroneous assignment."

Queeg, frowning at the air in front of him, his face gone pale, said with difficulty, "And I wonder how that would look in my record sir—relieved of my first command after one month!"

"I believe I could guarantee you a fitness report that would remove any possible doubt on that score—"

Queeg suddenly plunged his left hand into his pocket and brought out the steel balls. "Don't misunderstand me, sir. I don't say that CO of the Caine is the best assignment any officer ever had, or even that it's the assignment I deserved. But it happens to be the assignment I've got. The Caine is far from what I want it to be, but that doesn't mean I'm going to give up and sneak off to some shore billet. No, thank you, Captain Grace." He looked for a moment at the operations officer, and resumed his glowering address to the invisible audience in front of a little above him. "I am captain of the Caine, and I intend to remain captain, and while I'm captain the Caine will carry out its assignments or go to the bottom trying. I'll promise you one thing, sir—if stubbornness, and toughness, and unremitting vigilance and supervision by the commanding officer are of any avail, the Caine will come through any combat duty assigned. And I'll stand by the fitness report I'll get when my tour of duty is over, sir. That's all I have to say."

Grace leaned backward, hooking his arm over the back of his chair. He regarded Queeg with a slight smile, and nodded his head several times. "Professional pride and a sense of duty, both of which you obviously have, can carry an officer a long way in this outfit." He stood, and put out his hand to Queeg. "I think we've each spoken his piece. I'm going to accept your report. As to these mistakes of yours, or unfortunate incidents, as you prefer to call them, well, they say a bad beginning makes a good ending—"

"Thank you, sir," said Queeg. "I have always endeavored to make only sensible and useful decisions, and in view of your kind advice I shall redouble my efforts in that direction."

Captain Grace stood beside the admiral's heavy mahogany desk in a wood-paneled, green-carpeted room.

"I wish you'd have let me see the report before accepting it," the admiral was grumbling. He was a lean, wintry little man with piercing blue eyes.

"I'm sorry, admiral."

"It's all right. What's your impression of this Queeg? That's the main thing."

Grace drummed on the desk softly with his fingers for a moment. "An old lady, I'm afraid, sir. I think he's earnest enough and probably pretty tough, but he's one of those that are never wrong, no matter how wrong they are—"

"How about that towline? What's the story? Did he cut it or didn't he?"

armloads of bottles, to a jeep that stood outside in the gloom of the driveway.

Captain's Mate Second Class Langhorne was summoned to the captain's cabin next morning at seven-thirty and asked to fix up a partitioned crate for thirty-one bottles.

Late that afternoon he came staggering into Queeg's cabin, his face pouring sweat, bearing on his back a box made of fresh-sawn white boards. Mopping his streaming face with a redbridge!

"What shall I announce, sir?" "Don't be so godarn stupid, sir! Announce that they're to stop putting on that godarn gear and report those names to the Bureau!"

"Sheet lead?" "Metalsheets were fresh out of sheet tin, sir—"

"But heavens, lead. Good stiff cardboard would have done just as well—"

"I can rip them lead sheets out, sir, and make it over—"

"No, never mind," grumbled Queeg. "Get some excelsior and pack away those bottles."

"Aye aye, sir."

Grace shook his head dubiously. "Well, it's one of those things. He got terribly offended when I asked about it—it seemed sincere enough. I more or less had to take his word that it didn't happen. You'd have to run a court of inquiry to get at the definite facts, sir, and I don't know—"

"No—we can't go tracking down scuttlebutt with courts of inquiry. But I don't like the cut of the man's jib, Grace. Too many questionable occurrences too fast."

"Do you think I ought to recommend to the Bureau that he be relieved?"

"No, sir," said Grace promptly. "In all fairness to the man, he's done nothing that we know of definitely to warrant that. Overtension in his first command could account for everything that's happened so far."

"Well, then—look here, CinPac wants me to send two destroyers for overhaul and new radar installations to go on the Flintlock push," said the admiral. "What's wrong with sending the Caine?"

"Nothing, sir. It's been in the forward area twenty-two months."

"Okay. Get up the dispatch recommending the Caine. Let this Queeg pull his next butch some place else."

A yard overhaul in the States was the most precious, prayed-for assignment of the war. In a year of combat steaming De Vries had been unable to earn it for the old disintegrating Caine. Queeg had achieved it in his first four weeks, commanding the Navy's best damn target-towing ship.

When the dispatch came, it was New Year's Eve, Fourth of July, and every man's birthday and wedding day aboard the Caine. Willie Keith wrote to May and to his mother, hinting strongly to May that her presence on the pier when the Caine pulled into San Francisco would be an overwhelmingly fine surprise—the omitted any such hint to his mother.

The talk in the wardroom at lunch next day was warm and jolly for the first time since the change of command. Old jokes were revived about romantic escapades in Australia and New Zealand. In the midst of the merriment Queeg said, "By the way, none of you fellows have used up your liquor ration at the club, have you? Or if anyone has, say so." None of the officers spoke up. "That's fine. Anybody have any objection to selling his ration to me?" Queeg caught his officers off guard, with varying shades of grumpiness they all over there, frowning horribly.

"Mr. Keefer?"

"Yes, sir?" "I want you to make the following announcement over the loud-speaker: 'Every man who is not wearing a helmet or a life jacket is docked one day's leave in the United States. Every man who is wearing neither is deprived of three days' leave.'"

The men at the gun stations, hearing the words from the loud-speakers, could be seen turning their heads toward the bridge, their faces showing incredulity and rage. Then a boiling activity began among them, and helmets and life jackets began to appear magically, mushrooming all over

Canada Pays Tributes To Dead of Three Wars

By Canadian Press

Canadians honored their war dead as Remembrance Day was observed in cities and towns throughout the country. Business organizations observed two minutes' silence.

At 11 a.m. activity ceased and citizens stood with bowed heads on the 34th observance since the ceasefire of the First World War.

In Ottawa, thousands gathered around the National War Memorial and watched Governor-General Vincent Massey place the cornerstone of the government's new $5,000,000 veterans affairs department building.

Government offices, stock exchanges, banks and most schools were closed.

At Montreal, soldiers returned from the Korean battlefield joined in observances at the Dominion Square Cenotaph. Lieutenant-Governor Gaspard Fauteux of Quebec took the salute.

More than 100 wreaths were placed on the Cenotaph at Toronto by service clubs and organizations.

In many centres veterans back to the Boer War joined others returned from more recent conflicts in honoring their fallen comrades.

Parades and cenotaph services featured Edmonton observances. The armed services called out more than 1,000 men and women in Winnipeg for special parades. Roman Catholic churches held special masses.

In Quebec City, services were held Sunday when wreaths were placed at the Cross of Sacrifice. The same day Canadian soldiers in Korea and Hannover, Germany, paid tribute to Canadian war dead with two minutes' silence.

Large parades were held Tuesday in Halifax, Moncton and other east coast centres.

At Ottawa, Mrs. Dan McCann, on behalf of all bereaved mothers in Canada, stood beside the prime minister to place her wreath. She lost two sons.

Notable among the floral tributes placed at the base of the National War Memorial were those of Japan and Germany, two countries with which Canada was once at war. But Russia placed no wreath. She has not done so for the last two years.

Edmonton Remembrance Day ceremonies were held at the Cenotaph overlooking the North Saskatchewan River Valley in Indian summer warmth. The day was observed as a general holiday in the Alberta capital.

Provincial civil servants held a separate observance Monday afternoon in the rotunda of the legislative building, with Acting Premier W. W. Cross presiding.

It was drizzly and damp during the ceremony at Vancouver's Cenotaph in Victory Square. About 2,000 troops and members of the Canadian Legion, including all services, American Legionnaires and mounted police paraded. Spectators were fewer than usual because of the weather. A Royal Canadian Artillery parade to the Cenotaph was attended by five Sikhs who recently joined the group.

ANCIENT RECIPES PEPPER INDIA PALATES

Sikhs Greet High Commissioner

BY HUMPHREY DAVY

Some of the hottest, spiciest and oldest recipes in the world were used in preparing a private banquet honoring R. R. Saksena, India's High Commissioner in Canada, whose visit to Victoria Wednesday brought to an end a cross-country tour of Canada.

The host was Hurdit Singh, a leaving member of the Canadian East Indian community.

The High Commissioner, whose usual fare differs little from Canadians, was served with "piping" hot dishes of the Punjab, some of which were strange even to resident Sikhs.

The servings included Khara Purri, a bread cooked like a pancake in butter; vegetables, gourds, curried chicken and dishes mixed with spices capable of making the palate of the uninitiated smart.

Later, Mr. Saksena was guest at the Topaz Avenue Sikh Temple.

Here in the brightly decorated place of worship cymbals clashed, the beat of a drum resounded, while a small girls' choir sang religious hymns.

Mrs. Saksena, clad in a wine-colored sari, sat among the women folk on the floor of the temple.

The High Commissioner in a brief address pointed out that Canadians of East Indian origin enjoyed a much higher standard of living than the people of India.

The average yearly income of the wage earner in India is $35, he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Saksena, who arrived in Victoria Monday, were also guests at a colorful banquet held at the Empress Hotel. Kuldeep Singh Bajis was in the chair.

Among those present at the banquet were Hon. R. W. Mayhew, Canada's new ambassador to Japan; Ralph Chetwynd, minister of trade and industry; Mayor C. L. Harrison, Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, M.P., Mayo Singh, and Bharat Singh, secretary of the Khalsa Dwan Society.

The high commissioner and his wife returned to Vancouver late Tuesday.

SPRINKLED FROM SHAKER

New Skin Process Possible Boon to Burn Sufferers

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 12 (AP)—New skin sprinkled from a salt shaker to cover burns is a prospect raised today in a report to the National Academy of Sciences.

The skin would be quick-frozen, dried under a vacuum, then powdered and stored under vacuum. But the skin would remain alive, able to provide a living cover as a first step in skin-grafting over severe burns.

Blood vessels or other human spare parts might also be kept alive, intact, for years by the same freezing and drying.

The possibility is foreseen in success in freeze-drying influenza virus and other tissues, and freezing it still alive some time later.

This work was described by Dr. Donald Greiff, professor of biology at St. Louis University. He used a specially-built apparatus to freeze the virus or tissue with dry ice and acetone, and dry it under low pressure to vaporize the liquid.

Duke of Edinburgh To Head Organization

LONDON, Nov. 12 (Reuters)—The English-Speaking Union of the British Commonwealth said Sunday the Duke of Edinburgh has agreed to become its president. The Queen was president from 1951 until her father died, when she became patron of the union in his place. The union is an Anglo-American organization designed to promote comradeship in the English-speaking countries.

New Cost Index May Cause Snag

But Labor Spokesmen Expect Difficulties In Cost of Living Clauses To Be Overcome

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA (CP) — Cost-of-living escalator clauses in labor contracts covering thousands of Canadian workers will be affected by the new consumer price index, but union spokesmen are confident changes will be negotiated without strife or conflict with management.

Escalator clauses provide for pay boosts or cuts in accordance with the rise or fall in living costs expressed in terms of the cost-of-living index, now due to be replaced by the new price index.

The big complication lies in the fact that the escalator clauses were worked out on the basis of point changes in the index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100. For example, some contracts call for a cent-an-hour wage boost for every 1.3-point rise in the index.

BASED ON 1949

However, the new index will be based on 1949 prices equalling 100. Roughly, a three-point rise in the old index would be expressed as only a two-point increase in the new. This would have the effect of reducing payments to workers under the old escalator clause if living costs should rise again.

To prevent that from happening, union men say they plan to approach management either:

1. To re-negotiate the escalator clauses on the basis of the new index.
2. To agree to a conversion formula to express rises and falls in both indexes through a simple process of arithmetic.

Most popular view is that the conversion factor will be accepted until current labor agreements run out and new ones are negotiated.

The conversion factor will be roughly about 1.6—that is, any point change in the new index will be multiplied by 1.6 to bring it to where it would have been under the old prices barometer.

STRIKE AN AVERAGE

The factor is reached by estimating the average of the old index during 1949—roughly about 160.0—which would be equal to the new index base of 100.

For example, a two-point increase under the new index, multiplied by the conversion factor of 1.6, would bring the increase to 3.2, which, roughly, it would have been under the old index.

Polish Treasures Still in Quebec

QUEBEC, Nov. 12 (CP)—The disputed Polish art treasures kept in a vault in the provincial museum here were given their annual inspection last week, it was learned today.

Art experts, representing private persons who brought the treasures to Canada during the Second World War, opened the 24 blue chests to inspect the treasures. The three experts worked under Quebec provincial police guard in the locked-off archives section of the museum.

The treasures, long a point of dispute between the present Polish government, which wants them back, and Canada, were entrusted to the Quebec government in February, 1948, by Roman Catholic nuns of Hotel Dieu Cloister here. The nuns had kept the treasures after being entrusted with them by persons who brought them to Canada.

Premier Duplessis has said the treasures will remain in the government's safe-keeping until "competent tribunals" decide who should have them.

RITA TOO HOT FOR MACHINES?

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA, Nov. 12 (UPI)—Rita Hayworth's dances in her latest movie were too torrid for projection machines in Korea.

During one showing at a 23rd Regiment unit recently, a projection lamp blew out. The next night, at another battalion, a tube went out during the same dance sequence.

All Political Parties Support Diefenbaker Club

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Nov. 12 (BUP)—A Diefenbaker club has been formed in Prince Albert, supported by members of all parties, to try and ensure the election of John G. Diefenbaker in the federal riding of Lake Center.

Diefenbaker, who has been invited to stand in Ontario, British Columbia and in at least four Saskatchewan ridings, has said that he definitely will run in the federal riding of Lake Center.

He says, "I am honored to be invited to stand outside the province but whatever I can do must be for my home province."

His present seat, also Lake Center, was affected by the redistribution bill.

The Prince Albert Diefenbaker Club was formed by 12 persons, each one a well-known figure in one of three political parties in the province—C.C.F., Liberal and Conservative.

Train Accidents Kill Two B.C. Men

VANCOUVER, Nov. 12 (BUP)—Two men have been killed on the lower mainland in separate train accidents.

At Port Kells, a 27-year-old man died when his truck was hit by a train at a level crossing north and east of the town.

R.C.M.P. are withholding his name pending notification of relatives.

The accident occurred at 7:45 a.m. today. Police reported the truck was a total wreck.

And at Mission, the body of an unidentified man was found at 2:20 a.m. today lying on the C.P.R. tracks on the outskirts of the town.

Police said he apparently was struck by an eastbound C.P.R. freight sometime during the night.

He is described as 50 years old and dressed in laborers' clothing.

Sirens sounded a minute-long at 2:30 p.m., the funeral hour, stopping traffic and work within itself.

Chief Rabbi Yitzhak Halevi Herzog presided and recited 10 verses from the Book of Psalms. They were chosen so that the Hebrew initials of each verse spelled out "Haim Ben Ozer," which stands for Chaim, son of Ozer Weizmann.

Memorial services were held today in Israel's hundreds of synagogues and also in many of its Christian churches.

Special Equipment Being Provided For Palsy Clinic

Special equipment to aid youthful cerebral palsy sufferers is being made for a therapy and treatment clinic at Victoria, members of the Cerebral Palsy Association of Lower Vancouver Island said following a meeting Monday night.

Firms, individuals and organizations are giving support.

Full-length wall and ceiling mirrors, necessary to enable children to study their own locomotion, slides, tables, parallel bars and a walker are included in equipment being furnished by various firms and groups.

Barbara Brents BUYS AND WHYS A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

MONTREAL, November 13th—Who ever said that women can't say anything? I've talked it over with dozens of my friends, and we've all come to the same conclusion. There's nothing quite like SWANS DOWN CAKE FLOUR to make wonderful, tender, cakes. No mix, no other flour, can give such superb cake results. It's quite logical too. Swans Down is especially made for better cake baking. It is milled from the finest of soft winter wheat...then sifted again and again until it is as fine as ordinary flour. Try Swans Down the next time you make a cake...and see if you don't agree with all the rest of us who have discovered what an improvement Swans Down makes in cake baking.

You Get Them Both...convenience and extra protection...when you buy BLUE BONNET DE LUXE MARGARINE. It's pre-cut in golden-yellow quarter pounds each. A quarter pound individually wrapped pure cream margarine with inner parchment lining that seals in Blue Bonnet's unique flavor. You can seal out the box odors. And Blue Bonnet's "De Luxe" quarter pounds are so convenient. No scooping—no slicing or re-wrapping. Just, unwrap what you need and serve. What's more, you can forget your measuring cup when you're cooking with De Luxe Blue Bonnet. The handy chart on the package shows exactly where to cut for recipes.

We All Agree! At bridge the other day that those grand new chemical soaps make dishwashing a pleasure (well, almost!). And we agreed, too, that JERGENS LOTION is ideal for hands roughened and dried by these soaps. Use Jergen's after every water contact. Because it's liquid, it quickly penetrates and softens the skin. It's not greasy, it dries quickly. Skin needs a bottle of Jergen's Lotion handy in both kitchen and bathroom.

Make a hand-crafted habit of it—to keep your hands always soft, smooth and lovely, with that cared-for look that only Jergens can give them. Not expensive—just 15¢, 37¢, 66¢ and $1.15.

There's Lots Of Z-zipp! to this season's popular skirt-n'-top fashions. And you can match style with service by sewing LIGHTNING zippers into your skirts. They're pre-cooked in Heinz spotless kitchens, so all you have to do is take them from the tin, warm them up and serve. They're wholesome and appetizing, yet light and nutritious—all expertly blended to give baby extra nourishment. And when baby is a little older, he'll need HEINZ JUNIOR FOODS to help build strong bones and a sturdy little body. So next time you're shopping—ask your dealer for Heinz Baby and Junior Foods.

Not Being A Scientific Genius, I'm not too sure just how the Face-Elle people get their tissue handkerchiefs so super soft and yet so strong and absorbent at the same time. But you don't have to be any kind of genius to appreciate the difference between FACE-ELLE and other brands. You'll find that Face-Elle handkerchiefs don't shrink...don't fade...don't stain...and they're wonderful when you have a cold, too...no list to irritate tender nasal passages. Just try a box of Face-Elle...you can't beat that Face-Elle combination of softness plus strength! But be sure and ask for Face-Elle by name.

SEVEN CURTAIN CALLS FOR SHAPIRO PLAY

Montreal Playwright's 'Bridge' Acclaimed by Critics, Audience

LONDON, Nov. 12 (CP)—The "big-league" debut of Montreal's Lionel Shapiro as a playwright Tuesday night won enthusiastic first-night acclaim from audience and critics alike.

The Canadian journalist's first play, "The Bridge," received seven curtain calls following its premiere at the Theatre Royal in Bristol. Shapiro himself was called on the stage several times.

The play, described by Shapiro as a remote adaptation of his second novel, "Torch For a Dark Journey," was presented by the Bristol Old Vic Company under the direction of Denis Carey. It writes.

Several distinguished personalities attended the performance, including Viscount and Lady Dunbar, son and daughter-in-law of Lord Bessborough, former governor-general of Canada. Also present were Sir Bronson Albery, governor of the Old Vic, and film star Margaret Lockwood.

The Bristol Evening Post's critic lauds Shapiro as a playwright who succeeded in his first attempt.

"From the metal of contemporary politics and conflicting ideologies," he writes, "he has wrought a play that deserves to win approval."

Says the Bristol Evening Post: "Shapiro's play enjoyed a brilliant first night and the Bristol Old Vic introduced a striking new playwright in this 44-year-old Canadian journalist. Under Denis Carey's direction the play becomes a taut, absorbing drama shrewdly valued and smoothly performed."

NEVER UNINTERESTING

The Times of London describes it as "a long, rambling, but never uninteresting play," and one that holds the stage as intelligent entertainment.

The London Daily Telegraph says: "In these days when there is a dearth of good new dramatists it is a heartening thing to find a writer capable of tackling a serious theme with dignity and strength."

The play deals with the dilem-

TV SET IN BARN ASSURES CONTENTED COWS, MORE MILK

WHITBY, Ont., Nov. 12 (CP)—The latest method of increasing milk production and making sure you have contented cows is by providing television in the barn.

That's Russell Fleming's theory and he claims to have proof.

Fleming installed a television set in his barn for his own pleasure but soon found his cows enjoyed the set too. Milk production has increased 15 gallons a day since he installed the set, he said.

"They seem to get the most kick out of watching such comics as Arthur Godfrey and Eddie Cantor," Fleming said.

"They seem to do the cows most good."

An inspection of all multiple family dwellings licensed as revenue properties will be undertaken by the municipality of Esquimalt.

Because of some violations of zoning by-laws, the council has been forced to tighten up on existing zoning regulations, it was decided at a council meeting Monday.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele explained that the situation is a hang-over from the days of wartime housing emergency when, by federal government order, the local laws were relaxed.

Today, the situation has altered. Council has had to cope with complaints from householders that neighbors run apartment houses. The federal ruling which relaxed zoning by-laws has since become invalid.

The reeve said the by-laws will be enforced, but in a manner calculated to cause no distress by removing the livelihood of apartment house owners. He said the council realizes many of these people bought so-called revenue-producing homes, not knowing they were in residential areas.

He intimated in some areas a rezoning program might be launched to change neighborhoods from "resident" to "apartment."

The greatest difficulty facing the municipality is in the definition of dwellings under the by-law.

New Oak Bay Junior High School Opens Doors to 255 Students

Piles of earth and the odd mud puddle on the ground outside did not mar the spanking new Oak Bay Junior High School, which opened its door to pupils for the first time today. About 255 boys and girls—drawn from Willows, Monterey, Margaret Jenkins and Oakland

Schools—walked down spacious, bright corridors to eight new classrooms. The school will operate as an elementary one until the new year, when it will be reconstituted as a junior high and the full school used. There are 14 standard classrooms in addition to an auditorium, gymnasium, two home economics rooms, three industrial arts rooms, commercial, science, art and music rooms and library. In the first picture three Grade 8 pupils trundle their desks along the hall . . . from left: Neil Harrison, Michael Bowen and Don Carey.

BETWEEN TIMES

By PUNCH ROBERTS

Well, the Old Man is off on another little trip to Vancouver, which I and the other boys at the office firmly believe is nothing but an extra day off for him.

But anyway that means I have to write Between Times for him, to earn my daily bone, but for once I do not mind, as I have a little matter to discuss with the female department of this newspaper.

Dear female department: Please, consult your society section of Saturday, Nov. 8, and what will you find there?

You will find a full-page filled with nothing but pictures of cats.

Mind you, the cats were accompanied by some very charming people, who appeared quite normal outside of this eccentricity of being photographed with felines.

But what I would like to know, how do cats rate the society page?

What are they trying to do, put on the dog or something?

Dear female department, you should be more particular who you run pictures of on your society page. Remember, there is no point to a society page if it is thrown open to all the riff-raff of the city, and if a moth-eaten tomcat can make your page us dogs will refuse to let you use our pictures.

Then where would you be? How can you put out a society page without a photo of Mrs. Noeshingly, pictured in the garden of her charming Oak Bay home, with her two beautiful dogs, Riverhampton Royal Coxwell Murgatroyd III, and Ch. Count Von Baron Den Senior Los Donnerbierbantzenzian the 92nd (known to their pals as Snuffy and Butch, respectively).

I'm a little mixed up. There should be a question mark in there somewhere, but I don't know where.

What I am getting at, dear female department, you cannot run with the cats and hunt with the hounds.

Nothing less than a full page of the top-sirloin of dog society is needed to make amends for last Saturday's horrible exhibition of snarling, arrogant, spitting, clawing, unfriendly, and several other adjectives which escape me at the moment, cats.

While I am on the subject of cats, I have a question for somebody to answer. It is probably the mayor, if he is not too busy to lend an ear.

What I want to know is, why does a fine, upstanding citizen like me have to wear a dog tag, which cost the old man $2.50, while a cat, which contributes nothing to the comfort or ego of man, doesn't have to pay a cent?

A dog can look at a man with such respect, wonder, and affection, that the man immediately believes he (the man) is wonderful, and goes out and conquers the world.

Also, when a man comes home beaten and buffeted by ill fortune, he can snarl at his dog, and his dog will put a paw on the man's knee, and the man feels okay again.

And for these, and all our other services to mankind, a dog has to wear a license tag.

What does a cat do to get off scot free?

A cat makes hideous noises at night, has complete contempt for the people who allegedly own it, does nothing but sleep, eat, and take care of its own comfort.

There is a great injustice here, Mr. Mayor.

I do not suggest that you immediately lift the license fee from us dogs.

We are quite willing to have our Old Men contribute to the city coffers.

But I do think you might cut the fee in half.

And stick the CATS with the OTHER half.

(Wait'll the Old Man comes home and finds the spot I've put HIM in! That'll teach him to go away and leave me here.)

Sailor Held On Nurse's Attack Charge

An 18-year-old sailor was charged in city police court today with assault of a nurse on Douglas Street early Sunday morning.

Joseph Norris Longtin, H.M.C.S. Naden, was remanded to Thursday without plea on the charge.

Miss Lucia Lee, a Chinese nurse, had reported to police, a man in naval uniform attempted to hold her up as she was walking along Douglas near Pandora early Sunday.

She reported the man approached and demanded: "Give me what you got."

He said he had a hand in his pocket indicating he had a gun.

She said that when she offered him her handbag and purse, he did not take them. She screamed and the man held his hand over her mouth to stifle her cries and then left her in a hurry.

Blair Reid Dies At Vancouver

Blair Reid, 63, a resident of Victoria for 38 years, died suddenly in Vancouver Sunday.

Interviewed on his arrival today at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Woodward, 1588 Fairfield Road, he said the R.C.A.F. fighter squadron stationed at North Luffenham is being well received.

"We paid them a few visits and made quite a few friends in the squadron," he said.

He has visited this time he has been playing at the same time as his old friend, Danny Kaye, who is also on a west coast swing.

The two have been going to see one another's shows regularly.

About the earlier reference to being a violinist, "It's a little known fact that as a young man Peerce started out with fiddle and bow. He got to be good at it, too."

He played with such name orchestra leaders as Vincent Lopez and George Olsen.

Light-Blinded, Driver Tells Inquest Jury

Accidental Death Verdict Follows Fatal Hillside Mishap; Widow Tells Story

Driver of a car which struck and fatally injured an 86-year-old city man on Hillside Avenue last Sunday night told a coroner's jury today lights of oncoming cars blinded him.

Gordon W. Stewart, 999 Island Highway, said at an inquest at McCall Bros. Funeral Parlor, he did not see the victim, Ernest W. Carter, who was crossing the road to his home at 1469 Hillside.

Veterans will be given preference.

The provincial secretary noted it is the first time a government has ever advertised the position in the press.

Applicants must apply in their own handwriting, stating references and experience. Applications must be addressed to the Provincial Secretary. Deadline for submission of applications in Nov. 22.

Famed Artist Jan Peerce Sings Tonight

By DAVE STOCK

A world-famous violinist was in town today. He's giving a concert tonight at the Royal Theatre.

He won't be playing his violin, however. He's left it at home in New York. But the concert will go on as scheduled. The artist will sing.

It's because of his singing, of course, that Jan Peerce is world famous.

Mr. Carter had just to make an ordinary step to reach the boulder on the south side when he was hit, according to the evidence. Mrs. Kellegrew said Mr. Carter did not appear to know he was in any danger.

A short, stocky man with straight black hair and thick horn-rimmed glasses, Peerce would be picked out in a crowd.

Meanwhile, miners in the midst of muck and water, continue to hack away at rock in the tunnel. They expect to make good progress if they don't run into clay.

Clay slows down the work because timber has to be erected to support the walls.

SHOPPING GUIDESmart Packaging Sparks Yuletide Inspirations!

By PENNY SAVER

Tie a satin bow around 'em, tuck in a gift tag and this line of Christmas gifts will be ready to take their place under your Christmas tree—they're that attractive!

With an eye to sparkle, a leading cosmetician has whipped up some charming ideas that combine eye appeal with gift appeal! Selecting the most popular year-round favorites in her line of well-known fragrances, she has created several sets that will be welcome under any Yuletide tree.

Any woman will tell you there's nothing nicer, nor more welcome, than a gift bottle of this favorite fragrance. And when it comes in a clever "france well," with matching body powder forming the base, you know she will be doubly pleased. This delightful fantasy comes both white magnolia and heaven-sent fragrance sets for $4.50.

If you really want to pamper her this Christmas, there's a luscious command performance eau de cologne and perfume beautifully boxed in de luxe cream and gold at only $5.50.

Need something to top off the Christmas stocking? Take your choice of three fragrances—command performance, heaven-sent or white magnolia, they're the Christmas "jeweled" packages, all cleverly topped with sparkly sapphire, emerald, ruby or amethyst-colored stones. The perfume-cologne bottles are enclosed in cartons tied with gold cord, and shiny-bright with grey two-tone foil. Large or small sizes of each at $2.50 and $4.50.

You can buy generous jars of colorful perfume foam bath for that extra gift—or help out your Christmas budget. The jars are large and impressive, but the price is small. Your choice of four fragrances, $3.

Perhaps you would like a real novelty to hang on the tree or use on a festive Christmas table. It has been dreamed up for you in saucy-faced snowballs with gay-colored pillbox chapeaux. And each chapeau conceals a different perfume compact. The ladies will love them. And so will your budget—they are only $1.75 each.

Then there are the "Christmas pullers," for you who like your gifts already decorated with gay Christmas-ify foil, but concealing familiar well-loved toiletries. Within each sparkling puller is one of the four famous cologne sticks at $2.75.

Of course, don't forget the popularity of beauty luggage for the women! You can choose the inexpensive town and country travel kit (all fitted out for dry skin, or for normal and oily skin) for $12.50; or if you are luxury-minded there is the sumptuous overnight beauty case at $25.

All the favorites in this particular line—soaps, colognes, perfumes and bath powders will be dressed up for Christmas-giving, too. You'll find attractive gifts starting as low as 95 pennies in this category—and a good many in the $2.50 and $3.50 range to help you fill out your Christmas list!

AS WE LIVEHappy Marriage Needs Maturity, Like Cultures

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, Ph.D.

There have been many studies made of the effects of differences on the happiness of marriages. These differences relate to nationality, religion, education, social and economic backgrounds, etc. How do such differences affect marriage is the question asked by this young girl.

(Q) "I am 16 and have been dating a fellow of 19 for several years. We were very happy until now. My mother and father will not let me date him because his religion and nationality differ from mine. They have told me to find someone of our own kind. I have gone out with boys of my own kind, but it's not the same. He's willing to change his religion but his nationality will always be the same. I would like us all to be happy. Please tell me what to do."

(A) You and this boy are too young to consider marriage now. Until you are mature enough in your judgments and in your ability to take responsibilities, you will be wise to date other boys to see if you are making a wise decision about this boy.

First and foremost, there is the matter of both your parents. How do the boy's parents feel about you? Have they the same objections your parents have about their son? If so, it would make a difficult situation all around if you should marry him.

Then there is the matter of family customs. Every nationality has its own way of living, relating to food, position of wife and children in the family, celebration of holidays, rearing children, etc. Would these differences, arising from the fact that you and he are of different nationalities, be a source of concern to you both?

And, finally, you must think in terms of your friends and his. How do they feel about religious and nationality differences? Would friends on both sides mix well or would one of you have to sacrifice your friends for the sake of the other? These are just a few of the complications that arise from marriages such as you are contemplating. Ponder them carefully before you make a final decision.

If you have a problem about family or friend ask Dr. Hurlock to help you. Write in care of this newspaper.

Between Ourselves

By ELIZABETH FORBES

"This is the peoples' park," said Bob Boyd, superintendent in charge of Manning Park, when I stood with him in front of his log cabin office at the summit of Mt. Allison Pass on the Hope-Princeton Highway.

"There's a fine road leading right through it," he added, "and you can get here from Vancouver in a few hours, by bus or by car."

"It's a summer picnic ground for everyone . . . and it could be a splendid winter playground, too. It's just up to the public. If they want it . . . it's here."

There are trails in Manning Park, leading to some of the finest skiing in British Columbia. Bob Boyd tells you . . . easy slopes or runs to try the metal of the most experienced skier.

"It's just up to the public," he repeated, "once they find it, we'll be open up here all-year round."

Bob Boyd is in love with his mountain playground . . . and because he's in love with it he wants to give pleasure . . . through it . . . to as many people as he can.

He's been up there since the park was first opening up. Pitched a tent on the very spot where his fine office home now stands, in 1946 . . . "I looked up and down the old road," he tells you, "no one coming, no one going. It looked rather lonesome, I can tell you. Nothing but trees and mountains."

But this business of making natural parks a place for "the public" was not new to him (he was in charge of the work on the John Dean Park out Saanich way), so he was soon at work, making plans for his new love.

In the six years he has been up at the summit he has seen the new highway completed. He has supervised the cutting of trails, clearing of campsites, building of a lodge and of maintenance offices of logs and stone. He has arranged for erection of rustic tables under the trees at the campsites, open-air fireplaces, and for trailer and automobile accommodation at these same sites, where you can pitch a tent or roll up in a sleeping bag if you wish.

Campsites Filled by Mid-Afternoon

"Only don't expect to roll in to any of these campsites later than 4 o'clock in the afternoon during the summer," Bob Boyd says, "they are always filled up by that time."

"Sure, we have thousands of people drive through the park in a season," he went on, "but they haven't really begun to see it yet."

"We sat on the log step, and Bob Boyd told me of the lookout on 'Windy Joe,' 6,000 feet high. 'Good trail right up to it,' he said, "and when you get there, you can see clear down to the United States border."

He spoke of trails up Frosty Mountain and some now under construction to mountain park land on the plateaus, where hikers, riders and campers "get all the outdoors they want."

In the future he hopes to see a museum of curios and relics of the park, and a tree display, in a grove back in the shadow of the mountains, showing the various species of growth in the area, and tame beaver pens where the working of this animal may be easily observed.

"And winter sports," he repeated, "we're building additional roadside campsites right now, some with cabin facilities with hot water showers."

"We're getting ready for the skiers," he said with a quick smile, "I'm betting that once they find snow conditions are right and the slopes just what the doctor ordered, they'll be up here."

He pushed his hat to the back of his head and pointed a hairy brown finger at me, "And we'll be ready for them."

Vera Williamson and William Keel On Honeymoon in Eastern States

Following their recent marriage in St. Stephen's Church, Mt. Newton Crossroad, Mr. and Mrs. William James Keel left for Seattle and flew to Lanchick, Mich., from where they are motorizing through Chicago and eastern states to Florida, Texas and California.

pink tulle over taffeta styled with bouffant skirt and net trimmed yoke. Her bouquet was pink carnations and white chrysanthemums with matching coronet.

John Keel was best man for his brother and ushers were Harry Harrison and Thomas Lavender, Seattle.

John Bodington, godfather of the bride, proposed the toast at the reception in the home of the bride's parents. Serviteurs were Mesdames Pat Aitken, Helen Treagall, Misses Jessie Sutherland and Wilma Cann.

When leaving for her honeymoon, the bride wore a softly tailored grey English flannel suit topped with a full-length orchid-toned coat complemented with navy accessories and an orchid corsage.

The newlyweds will make their home in the United States.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

She Knows the Happiness And Fun of Losing Weight

I want you to peep into my mail today. The following letter is really one of thanks to a family physician. Those fine men and women have long been family advisers, comforters and healers.

"All my life I have been fat so I know the heartaches it can bring. As a girl I had many girl friends but no dates and we can be lonely even in a crowd if there is no one there who especially likes you."

"Later on I did marry and as the years passed and the children came, I gained steadily. I always meant to exercise and diet but never got around to it. Why should I? I was full of fun and if I died it was certainly going to be on a full stomach!"

"Then I had some trouble which sent me to the hospital. My doctor weighed me and the scales said 302½ pounds. He suggested that I have a metabolism test. I did—and there went my pet. abn—there was nothing wrong with my glands! My doctor looked at me and shook his head. I looked at him and said,

"Will you help me lose weight?"

He said, "Come to my office this afternoon."

"Bless his heart, I know he didn't have any confidence that I would really lose because he knew me pretty well after 20 years. He gave me no pills but was free with his praise when the pounds began to drop off and encouraged me constantly."

"Today I weigh 176 pounds. I am going to lose another 20 pounds and then stay that way."

"Here are a few things I would like to tell other women who have lots of weight to lose. In the first place you really have to want to lose it for some reason."

"If you do, you can say 'no' and mean it, to all of those fattening foods. But a woman must really want to lose and stop eating and admit to herself that it is food and food alone that makes her fat. Now I shudder when I see food like that. I have found that it's much more fun to say 'no' and see that gleam in my husband's eye and my doctor's eye. They are both proud of me."

"Next I want to tell women that they need not be afraid of becoming flabby when they lose a lot of weight if they will do it gradually and eat scientifically. I didn't."

"There you have it in a nutshell. First, the determination which gives you the courage to go ahead, then a physical check-up, followed by gradual reducing on a diet which is carefully planned in order to give you the foods you require for health. If this is the way you do it, you need not fear flabbiness or fatigue or malnourishment. You will experience a pick-up in energy and physical comfort and fun."

If you would like to have my calorie chart send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 36 "Count Your Calories," to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

TAG KIDDIES AT MEETING

LONDON, Nov. 1 (CP)—When more than 3,500 women ganged up on London's Royal Festival Hall for the biggest mothers' meeting of the year, their most valuable possession was a hat check. The hat check reclaimed junior.

Hundreds of children played in an organized nursery with numbers pinned to their clothes. It was decided this would be the best way of ensuring the right mother got the right child in the shortest time.

Theme of the meeting was family life. The Duchess of Gloucester, guest of honor, said bringing up children as Christians was "a task of paramount importance."

C (I've put in time)

—(A) "The Story of Will Rogers" (Dominion)—For just a short while, at the beginning, I rejected Will Rogers, Jr., in spite of his "ain't" and grass-root sayings, he looked a trifle too slick to be playing the part of his tousled-haired dad whose rugged, humble face and gentle jokes won the hearts of the theatre-going world.

Gradually, however, I awakened to the realization that here was as honest a biography as one could ever hope for; indeed here was a man who was sincerely and easily kept old pros like Jane Wyman (who played Mrs. Will Rogers) and James Gleason (Bert Lynn, Roger's agent) and Carl Benton Reid (Clem Rogers) obviously battling to keep up to the surprising heights maintained by Will Jr.

I'm a man who basks in nostalgia of the good things gone forever. Therefore old shots from Will Rogers' heyday, particularly of the pulsating Flo Ziegfeld era, such as hearing the late Al Jolson, watching a surprisingly spry Eddie Cantor do his inimitable song and dance routine; a glimpse of Marilyn Miller, and roaring once again to the antics of the late comedienne Fannie Brice, was enough to make the show hit.

MEMORABLE SHOW AT YORK THEATRE

Opening Production of 'Hasty Heart' Draws Ovation From Near-Capacity Audience

By AILEEN CAMPBELL

They laughed a lot and cried a little at the York Theatre last night when the York Repertory Company opened in an outstanding production of "The Hasty Heart" before a sell-out audience.

A reviewer could have had his review written for him merely by listening to comments of the audience as they left the theatre after giving a thunderous ovation.

"Wonderful, superb, best of the lot . . . And they were so right."

The show was a knockout in every way—it literally has everything.

The part-humorous, part-pathetic tale of a dour little Scottish sergeant, who had no friend in the world and coldly told the world he needed none, unfolded with good humor, restraint and a little pathos.

As Sergeant Lachlan McLachlen, Michael Rothery gave a memorable performance. A kindly surgeon who felt "a man should have friends around him when he dies," put the friendless Scot in the same ward with a group of uninhibited soldiers.

"Dinna like to have m' freedom snatched into . . ." he told them in the convalescent ward of a temporary British hospital somewhere in the South-East Asia command.

His portrayal of the lonely, bitter young man who lived long to feel he had "a moment wi' kings" left little to be desired.

While Rothery was indeed the star, the entire cast came close to him in their individual portrayals.

Gordon Matthews as "Blossom" the Basuto, who knew no English and spoke but one word—his name—gave the play one of its finest moments, as he presented a string of beads to the departing Scot. His every motion spoke, even though his tongue was still.

Elizabeth Knight was a lovely "Margaret," the nurse who learned to love the Scot. Robert Tabor as "Yank" carried a major role admirably. Tension built up moment by moment would be eased by the Yank's humor. So well was it done, however, the underlying feel of the scene was never lost.

Alexander Gray, the Captain Joshua of "Thunder Rock," gave his usual capable performance as "Digger." Maurice Corbett as "Tommy," Brian Ainscough as the "orderly" and John E. Maunsell, guest artist, as "Kiwi," handled their roles well.

Guest artist Jack Ammon was effective as the "Colonel" whose patients called him "Cobwebs".

John Patrick's play of the soldier who feared sorrow came with a "hasty heart"—provided this very able company with their best vehicle to date and under the excellent direction of Ian Thorne, they gave it their best.

There was the odd muffed line, one or two forgotten cues, but so neatly were they recovered, the first-night audience never suffered.

$3,000 Fire In Oldfield's Saanich Home

An estimated $3,000 damage was done by fire to the home of H. C. Oldfield of Oldfield Road, Saanich, Monday night.

Most of the damage was in the upper half of the one and one-half-story house owned by the elder of the long-time Saanich family.

Saanich firemen responded to the alarm at 7.03 p.m. and quickly controlled and contained the fire but were on the job until 11.35 p.m. making certain it would not flare up again.

Fire officials said the fire was caused by an overheated chimney too close to woodwork. Firefighters had to hack through the roof to get at the main trouble spots.

Brilliant Young B.C. Musicians Bringing Rare Talent to Victoria

BY AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

Coming to the close of a recital tour that has taken them many hundreds of miles through Canada's four westerly provinces, two young British Columbian artists will present a program Saturday evening at the Arts Centre, 1040 Moss Street.

The Victoria recital is given under the sponsorship of the local branch of the Canadian Registered Music Teachers' Association.

The program to be heard Saturday, commencing at 8.30, includes the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto in E minor, the Mozart Piano Sonata in A major (Theme and Variations), Violin Sonata in D major by Handel, a Chopin piano group and a violin group.

The Federation expects no profit from these tours, and as a matter of fact stands to lose financially, regarding the venture merely as a service and an encouragement to the west's most talented budding concert artists.

HOME GARDEN

Dear Fred:
Thanks for your letter, and I am pleased to know you are keeping abreast of the jobs. As for the rest period you are anticipating, there is no such thing for a Victoria gardener because the gardens here never take a rest.

Regarding neighbor's advice to cut back tops of raspberry canes, this is sound practice when the canes are seven or eight feet long, but not when growth is less than four feet. Your raspberries are a good example of the need for humus. Do not dig near the raspberries as you suggested; they are surface rooting plants and any form of digging—with shovel or fork—done near the plant will sever the feeding roots and spoil next year's crop. Weeding around the plants must be done by hand after which apply a six-inch mulch of well-rotted manure or good compost.

It has always puzzled me why gardeners set raspberry plants so close together, especially in view of their rooting habits. When treated as individual shrubs and set four to six feet apart, weeding, cultivating and feeding are easy, sucker growth can be controlled, and the quality and size of the fruit is something worth having.

Either ground limestone or the hydrated agricultural lime may be used for sweetening the soil base. If you buy ground limestone be sure that it is in fine powder form because the coarser grades take too long to dissolve.

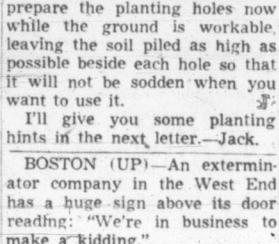

The dwarf fruit trees may be planted any time between now and next March. A lot will depend on when the nursery leaves are held—leaves that usually fall, and the condition of your soil during winter. In any case, it is a good idea to prepare the planting holes now while the ground is workable, leaving the soil piled as high as possible beside each hole so that it will not be sodden when you want to use it.

I'll give you some planting hints in the next letter.—Jack.

Campaign for Island Roads To Be Renewed

Entitled to 18 Per Cent of Provincial Highways on Per Capita Basis Is Claim

A renewed campaign for better roads on Vancouver Island was indicated Monday by Hector Crombie, Chamber of Commerce speaker at the weekly Cyro Club luncheon.

Mr. Crombie, who represents the Victoria publicity group as assistant secretary, stated that the fight for better roads on the Island has been going on for 30 years. He gave five reasons why it must continue.

First, the Island must encourage tourists to stay longer by opening new fields of interests to them. If last year's tourists, in number 400,000, had stayed one extra day, as they might have had there been additional beauty spots available by car, they would have spent an average of $10 more per person. This works out to a potential increase in tourist dollars spent here of $4,000,000, he explained.

The trade of Vancouver Island is strangled in outlying areas of great natural wealth because of lack of roads. Centres like Toftino and Ucluelet would be completely cut off were it not for steamship and air travel, he said. Mr. Crombie pointed out that there is a feeling of frustration generally regarding new road construction on the Island. He showed with statistics how this section of the province is not receiving its fair share of B.C.'s road-building program.

Basing his contention on the fact that 18% of the population of B.C. lives on Vancouver Island, he says we should have 18% of the roads. That ratio would entitle the island to 4,600 miles of road, whereas there are only 2,100 miles of roads coming under government responsibilities here. As regards motor vehicle registrations, he pointed out that we have 26% of the cars of the province . . . and only 9.7% of the roads.

B.C.H.I.S. Puzzles Over Dependent Classification

Who can be classed as dependents under B.C.'s hospital insurance plan?

This question has been asked of B.C.H.I.S. officials ever since the scheme's inception in 1949, and even more so since the government made certain changes in regulations governing dependency.

For the benefit of those who are still uncertain, here's a list of persons who may be claimed as dependents by the head of a family:

1. The spouse of the head of a family.

2. Persons mainly supported by the head of a family and over whom, in law or in fact, the head of a family has complete custody and control (whether exercised jointly with another person or not):

(a) who are under 16 years of age;

(b) who are married, over 15 years of age (i.e., who have reached their 16th birthday) and under 19 years of age.

3. Students (at a secondary school, university or other recognized educational institution) mainly supported by the head of a family, who are his son or daughter, brother or sister, unmarried, over 18 years of age and under 21.

4. Persons financially dependent on the head of a family:

(a) who is his parent or parent-in-law, grandparent or grandparent-in-law;

(b) through physical or mental infirmity, over 18 years of age, who are his son or daughter, son-in-law or daughter-in-law, brother or sister, brother-in-law or sister-in-law.

Because the terms "supported by," "dependent on," and "infirmity" can be given somewhat elastic interpretations, the regulations add the protective stipulation that claims for dependency must be proven to the satisfaction of Commissioner L. F. Detwiler.

United States authorities at Vancouver report Canadians visiting the U.S. for periods up to six months will not have to be fingerprinted.

Fingerprinting of visitors, announced recently, will apply only for visits of six months or more. First interpretation of a new Immigration Act, effective Dec. 24, was that Canadians would be fingerprinted and registered when visiting the U.S. for more than 30 days.

New Wrinkles in Forestry Before Conference Here

The main conference will open Dec. 10 at the Empress Hotel where delegates will be welcomed by Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers and C. D. Orchard, deputy minister and society president.

Between 400 and 600 foresters are expected.

On Dec. 9, day before the three-day conference starts, Puget Sound section of the American Society of Photogrammetry will hold its annual meeting.

Four of the five speakers who will discuss the use of air photos in fire suppression, forestry inventory and surveying, will be from the B.C. Forest Service. They are R. G. McKee, G. C. Emerson, H. M. Pogue and E. A. Rothery.

EDEN ENCOURAGED BY TRUCE PARLEY

British Foreign Secretary Offers Assembly Four-Point Proposal to Send to Panmunjom

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 12 (CP)—Britain Tuesday offered four principles as a basis for settling the war-prisoner issue blocking a cease-fire in Korea.

Foreign Secretary A. n. t. o. n. y. Eden told the United Nations in Britain's first major policy address to the current General Assembly that he does not despair that talks here can help towards a Korean settlement.

Eden said he was "encouraged" by the fact that Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of Russia had not said that prisoners should be forced back to their homelands at the point of a bayonet.

Eden said he believes these are the principles on which an agreement should be based:

1. Every prisoner has the right to be released on the conclusion of an armistice.

2. Every prisoner has the right to be speedily repatriated.

3. The detaining side has the duty to provide facilities for repatriation.

4. The detaining side has no right to use force in connection with the disposal of prisoners. "In other words, after an armistice a prisoner of war may not be either forcibly detained or forcibly repatriated."

Eden opened his address expressing the hope that Secretary-General Trygve Lie, who offered his resignation Monday in the interest of world peace, "can yet be persuaded to reconsider his decision." This was greeted by a loud applause from delegates.

Eden said if his principles are acceptable to Russia it will be possible to put them in the form of a resolution which could be communicated to the negotiators at Panmunjom as the basis for a settlement.

He noted that the U.N. command already has made suggestions for machinery to settle the prisoner issue including the sending of prisoners to a demili-

TALKING ABOUT TWO FLAVOURS

Did you know that delicious, nourishing Ovaltine now comes in TWO flavours? Yes, the ORIGINAL PLAIN flavour and a sweet CHOCOLATE flavour, too. Both provide proteins and energy foods from the ripe barley malt, milk, and eggs used in their manufacture, and the vitamin and mineral content is augmented with additional vitamins A, B₁, C, D, Riboflavin (B₂), Niacin and Minerals—available Iron, Calcium, and Phosphorus.

CHOCOLATE FLAVOURED OVALTINE is ideal for that hot drink at breakfast that every child should have during the fall and winter months. It is so nourishing, and the children love the delightful chocolate flavour.

ORIGINAL PLAIN OVALTINE—the favourite food beverage with adults for many years, is also excellent for invalids and convalescents and as a soothing, relaxing bed-time drink for anyone.

CHOCOLATE FLAVOURED and PLAIN OVALTINE are obtainable at all drug and food stores. Why not buy a tin today—it pays to buy the best.

Plan for New Charges Would Cut Freight Rates Railways Allege

OTTAWA, Nov. 12 (CP)—The railways said Tuesday a proposed new system of setting rail charges would result in freight rates lower than under the present basis.

Though the method calls for immediate rate increases, the Railway Association of Canada contended that, eventually it would bring about economies making lower tolls possible.

The submission was made to the Board of Transport Commissioners by John L. O'Brien, Health Minister Paul Martin of Canada. November 2, when he suggested that a "protecting power" made up of several countries should take over the prisoners for "release and repatriation."

The British leader noted in a review of world events during the last year that Communist propaganda has intensified in arousing hatred between countries.

No progress had been made on the important problems of unification of Germany, a peace treaty for Austria, new U.N. memberships and disarmament.

"The lack of progress . . . is discouraging," Eden said. "The peoples of the world expect the United Nations to do better than this."

Less Red Tape in Air Travel Across Borders Group's Plan

MONTREAL, Nov. 12 (CP).—The International Civil Aviation Organization Tuesday announced action to cut red tape involved in crossing of national borders.

The action was taken through amendments, adopted by I.C.A.O.'s council, to the organization's standards and recommended practices. They deal particularly with documents which national authorities in I.C.A.O.'s 57 member states may require for entry and departure of aircraft.

The amendments include items involving airfield operators and others involving passengers, crews and cargo.

Entrance visas, where still required for temporary visas, are simplified and standardized, the group had been undertaken.

Gyros Ponder Outlay of Money on City Parks

Victoria Gyro Club has a sum of money available to be spent on park development but the committee in charge is undecided on how to spend it to the advantage of the greatest number of people.

Pat Dunn, head of the committee, asked members at the weekly luncheon in the Empress Hotel,

Monday, to submit their ideas on the subject, and later suggested in an interview that the people who frequent Victoria parks might also have some opinions to air.

Gyro Walter Skillings, city alderman, remarked on the Topaz Park area which has been set aside by the city in the vicinity of the S. J. Willis High School areas.

FINAL ★★★ BULLETINS

Six Nominated for B.C. By-Elections

VANCOUVER, Nov. 12 (CP)—Six candidates today filed official nomination papers for the Nov. 24 by-elections in Columbia and Similkameen. The candidates are:

Columbia—Attorney-General Robert Bonner, Social Credit; Chris Madson, C.C.F., and George W. Keenleyside, Liberal.

Similkameen—Finance Minister Einar Gunderson, Social Credit; H. S. Kenyon, C.C.F., and Joseph Klein, Farmer-Labor.

Truman, Eisenhower to Meet Tuesday

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—The White House announced today that President-elect Eisenhower's conference with President Truman will take place at the White House next Tuesday at 2 p.m., E.S.T. (11 a.m., Victoria time).

Eisenhower agreed last week to meet with the President to familiarize himself with the present state of federal government affairs.

15 New Stores Seen for Canada

TORONTO, Nov. 12 (CP)—Simpsons-Sears Ltd. expects to build some 15 new stores in various Canadian centres during the next five years, at a cost of about $50,000,000, E. G. Burton, president, said today.

The first store will be the one already planned for Burnaby, a Vancouver suburb, which, with a mail-order addition, will cost more than $6,000,000 and will be opened in 1954. The retail section will cost between $3,500,000 and $4,000,000.

No decision has been made yet on locations for other stores but all cities of 40,000 and up are being studied.

Quadruplets Born on Far North Isle

JUNEAU, Alaska, Nov. 12 (AP)—The birth of quadruplets to a woman on distant Unga Island was reported today by the U.S. Coast Guard.

The mother was identified as Mrs. Alma Rudolph. Her condition was reported good after the Coast Guard flew a doctor to the island last week-end in response to an emergency call.

Unga is south of the Alaska Peninsula, about 350 miles beyond Kodiak.

FOR KOREAN TRUCE

British Sees Ike Bludgeoning Chinese

LONDON, Nov. 12 (Reuters)—President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower will probably try to "bludgeon" the Chinese into a Korean truce by means of force and an ultimatum, Labor M.P. Woodrow Wyatt said today.

Wyatt, who has just returned from a tour of the U.S., expected his views in a Daily Herald article headline: "It's Dynamite, Ike."

"Most probably, seeing things as a general, he will seek to bludgeon the Chinese into a truce by force and ultimatum," Wyatt said.

"At heart he is a reactionary and unlikely to understand the nature and strength of the nationalist impulses behind the Communists in China. To him, the idea of heavy force suddenly applied will seem attractive.

"I think that he will want to issue an ultimatum demanding that the Chinese sign a truce within a time limit. The alternative will be a great onslaught which will not respect the Chinese mainland. Then the prospect of a third world war might well loom."

Hiss' Parole Appeal Today

LEWISBURG, Pa., Nov. 12 (UPI)—Alger Hiss today waited his turn among scores of federal prisoners to tell the chairman of the U.S. parole board why he should be set free after serving 20 months of a five-year perjury term for denying he had engaged in espionage for the Communists.
